

CIVIL WAR IN SIGHT AS HUNDREDS FIGHT 3 HOURS IN AUSTRIA

Socialist and Bourgeois Defense Groups in a Bitter Clash.

QUELLED BY TROOPS; MANY ARE INJURED

Gendarmes Helpless; Victims Shot and Stabbed at Feldkirchen.

Vienna, March 25 (A.P.).—Seven hundred adherents of the Socialist Defense League and the bourgeois home defense force fought for three hours at Feldkirchen, Carinthia, Friday night. Gendarmes were powerless to stop the riot which ended only when regular troops intervened.

Ten men were seriously wounded by bullets and many others were stabbed. Altogether 23 of the combatants were sent to hospitals in serious conditions. Apart from these casualties, the largest hall in the town was entirely wrecked and the nose of the mayor of Feldkirchen was broken.

Authorities fear that the battle may be resumed at the first favorable opportunity, but they are taking steps to keep the two factions apart and to prevent reinforcements for either side from going to Feldkirchen. News reports of the fight were suppressed until today.

The conservative newspapers express the hope that the collision will not lead to civil war. Blame for the sanguinary encounter is attributed by the papers to the home defense force which they say, invaded a Socialist meeting and tried to expel out-of-town speakers.

The Socialists resisted this attempt and the home defense forces resorted to violence. They extinguished the lights in the hall and the fighting immediately was transferred to the streets. Both sides summoned reinforcements by telephone and the riot grew in volume as the additional factions arrived at the scene.

Then the gendarmes tried to stop the fracas.

Three hours after the start of the affair the regulars arrived and scattered the rioters.

The background of the rioting between the Socialists and bourgeois elements is not clear. No recent reports have come from that country that would shed light upon the situation or reveal whether the trouble at Feldkirchen was a local political affair or an outburst from a nationwide condition. There have been sporadic disorders ever since the big political riots of last July, but seemingly each was an incident by itself. The last previous affair occurred March 5 when communists stoned Vienna police.

Former Army Aviator And Wife Die by Gas

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 25.—Forcing the door of a Brooklyn apartment, police today discovered a domestic tragedy. Slumped in a chair was Mrs. Jean Crowley, 20. In her mouth was a gas heater tube. On the floor, as if he had fallen from bed, was Michael J. Crowley, 26, a former Army aviator and lately employed by the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Co. The Crowleys had been dead for hours. Police believed the young wife merely wanted to kill herself, and waited until her husband was asleep, not counting on the steady flow of gas from the tube being sufficient to flood the apartment and cause his death also.

Trapped for 16 Days, Miner Is Found Alive

Mexico City, March 25 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Tezuitlan to the newspaper Excelsior say that only one miner was found alive of 27 known to have been in the Aurora mine when fire broke out and cut off all means of escape.

The sole survivor was found yesterday several hundred feet below the surface, where he had been for sixteen days without food and subsisting only on water in which he was partly submerged. At the hospital to which he was carried physicians expressed the opinion that he would recover, in which case the government will award him a medal.

Alleged Bank Bandit Trapped in Street

Colorado Springs, Colo., March 25 (A.P.).—Trapped unawares on a downtown street by a squad of detectives armed with sawed-off shotguns, Albert Harry Adams, alias James Shannon sought for one murder and ten bank robberies in Utah and California, and his wife, Grace Shannon, were held here today.

Mrs. Shannon, the former Grace Winkelman, champion cowgirl and rodeo performer, was detained for investigation. She is a former University of Utah coed and was active in literary circles of the school.

Los Angeles police said Adams was wanted specifically for the $14,000 robbery of a branch of the Bank of Italy there on May 14, last.

Lindbergh, Gillis, Dad Share Yale Admiration

New Haven, Conn., March 25 (A.P.).—In the annual chess poll conducted by the Yale Daily News, the seniors of the college and the Sheffield Scientific School have confessed they believe Charles A. Lindbergh a greater figure than Mussolini or any other. Some of the college men admitted a sneaking regard for "Bossy" Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, Mass. Lindbergh also is the man now living who is admired most by the individual student, but "my dad" received 30 votes and "myself" three.

Sabin W. Carr, not only is the greatest pole vaulter, but is the "most modest" of the seniors, in their opinion. Bruce Caldwell is the "best all-round athlete" in college. John Rockefeller Prentice, nephew of John D. Rockefeller, is one of the "hardest workers." Jerry, paper boy to Yale men for years, is the "most popular campus character," and Cornelius, a porter, is next.

By a vote of 143 to 114 the students believe prohibition has harmed college life.

GUN GIRL TERRORIZED HIM, ASSERTS HUSBAND

Was First Victim of Robber Wife and Male Companion, He Says.

STAR BOARDER INVOLVED

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 25.—While three new identifications of Mrs. Elsie Kieble, 19, New York's latest gun girl, showed the startling extent of her pistol holdups, her hen-pecked husband today charged he was her first victim.

The girl and Thomas Henry, 23, the star boarder in the Kiebles' four-room home on the upper East Side, terrorized the father of her two children and made him their slave while they carried on their own lives, Harry Kieble, 25, alleged through his counsel.

This amazing revelation of domestic tragedy climaxed the arraignment of the beautiful black-eyed girl-mother in Harlem Court, charged with suspicion of robbery. On one side of her stood the star boarder, her partner in the confessed series of holdups, and on the other her resentful husband, who is charged with receiving stolen goods. All entered pleas of not guilty and were held without bail for examination Tuesday.

Details of the strange situation fell ringingly from the lips of the defense counsel, Harry Hirsch, who painted a touching picture of the slight, mild husband, madly devoted to his girl-wife and babies, and of the entrance of the handsome boarder into the home.

"Just three months ago Kieble's sister introduced her friend, Henry, to the happily married couple," said Hirsch. "Within that time Henry won the wife's

Prize Winner Fined As Not Real Architect

Budapest, March 25 (A.P.).—A district court has imposed a small fine of six days' imprisonment on Jose F. Vago, charged with representing himself to be an architect and designing public buildings without possessing an architect's diploma.

Vago was one of four victorious designers in competition with hundreds of foreign architects chosen by the League of Nations to design the league's new $5,000,000 palace at Geneva.

BOY FALLS TO DEATH OFF STONE MOUNTAIN

Hundreds of Sightseers View 800-Foot Plunge From Top of Precipice.

Stone Mountain, Ga., March 25 (A.P.).—A 17-year-old youth who ventured too close to the north precipice of Stone Mountain plunged 800 feet to his death today, while several hundred Sunday sightseers viewing the Confederate monument stood horror-stricken.

The youth, L. C. Lankford, of Atlanta, with two companions, had climbed to the top of the mountain and was playing near the edge of the precipice, spectators said. Suddenly Lankford slipped on the rain-drenched stone, lost his footing and went hurtling to his death on the jagged rocks below.

The accident occurred near the spot where the figure of Gen. Robert E. Lee is being carved.

Third Rum Trial Jury Deadlocked at 11 to 1

Philadelphia, March 25 (A.P.).—Standing 11 to 1 for conviction, the jury which tried John McCambridge, New York tugboat owner, and Jack Murphy, supercargo, for conspiracy in rum-running operations with the British steamer Bulko, was discharged last night. The deadlocked lasted almost 30 hours.

McCambridge and Murphy, alleged higher-ups, had been tried twice before on the same charge, but in each instance the jury failed to agree.

SOCIETY BLACKMAIL WRECKED HER HOME, SAYS MRS. J. C. BARR

Health Is Broken Down, She Reveals After Filing Separation Suit.

WIFE OF STEEL MAN ONCE RESIDENT HERE

Petition Charges Husband Is Often in the Company of Another Woman.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Ipswich, N. H., March 25.—How a band of society blackmailers broke up her home and tormented her until she suffered a nervous breakdown, was revealed here today by Mrs. James Cummings Barr, of the New York and Boston social registers, as a sequel to a suit for separation which is scheduled to come up for a hearing in Nashua, N. H., on April 9.

Barr is in the steel business at Boston, but until recently the couple passed much of their time in New York, at the Ritz Carlton Hotel and the Ritz Towers. Their estate at New Ipswich covers many acres, and besides a home in Boston, they maintain a Long Island country place at Sands Point. The papers in Mrs. Barr's action were filed in Nashua last week. They named a woman living in New York, and supplemented these charges with the customary ones of cruelty and neglect.

Today Mrs. Barr made public the story that lies behind the perfunctory phrasing of the legal papers—a story which has to do with one of those mysterious groups of predatory persons who move surreptitiously through the atmosphere of Broadway at the expense of married individuals who have something to conceal. Though the tribute they exact amounts to millions annually in New York alone, little of the activity of these predatory bands ever finds its way into print.

Was Prominent Here.

The Barrs were married in 1910, after Mrs. Barr had been divorced from Walter B. Fairfield, of Washington, D. C., who was twenty years her senior. Fairfield was a scientist and a member of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. His family had long been distinguished in Maine, and he and his wife were prominent in Washington social circles.

The Barrs lived happily together until 1922, when Mrs. Barr went abroad to visit the grave of her son, Richard Fairfield, the first American to land on the Italian front in the World War.

"I first began to suspect my husband when I returned to the United States," Mrs. Barr said this afternoon. "A woman called me on the telephone. She said she was 'Mrs. Lewis' and that she had been evicted from an apartment in New York because of my husband's conduct. She demanded money."

"I refused and confronted my husband with what she had said. He told me: 'Don't give her any money. I have

Parrot's Cry Prevents Death of a Woman

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, March 25.—The shrill cries of a parrot frustrated today the attempt of Mrs. Evelyn Fields, 40, to commit suicide. Mrs. Fields, the mother of two children, lives in West Eighteenth street.

Today Mrs. Byrd Stafford, who lives on the floor above, heard continued cries of Mrs. Fields' parrot. She went down stairs to investigate and smelled gas. She called a policeman who broke into the apartment. Mrs. Fields was unconscious, but an ambulance crew from Bellevue Hospital revived her and took her, refusing to explain her attempt to end her life, to the hospital. She will recover. Her children, Evelyn, 17, and John, 16, were not at home at the time.

$180,000 Gift Made For Leprosy Clinic

New York, March 25 (A.P.).—A gift of $180,000 by Eversley Childs, of New York, for establishment of a treatment station at Cebu, in the Philippine Islands, for milder cases of leprosy, was announced today by Gen. James G. Harbord, national chairman of the Leonard Wood Memorial for the eradication of leprosy.

The new station will be about 75 miles from the leper colony at Cebu. It will include laboratories, a medical center, clinics, wards, pharmacy, dispensary, cottages for the staff and all necessary equipment. It will allow segregation of the less advanced cases from the more serious and relieve the pressure on the Cullion colony.

Aimee S. McPherson Hurt When Car Skids

Des Moines, Iowa, March 25 (A.P.).—Aimee S. McPherson, evangelist, was injured last night when her automobile skidded off a muddy highway near Creston, whither she was driving to hold a Sunday service. Her head struck a crossbar and she was stunned. Mrs. McPherson's Creston appearance was canceled and the party returned to Des Moines.

Woman Flier Kills Child, Injures 5, Dodging Wall

Fatality Attends Attempt to Land in Field Surrounded By 8-Foot Barrier—Spectators Faint as Propeller Crushes Boy's Head.

London, March 25 (A.P.).—The Daily Mail says that a airplane piloted by Miss Winthrop Brown crashed into a wall near Dukinfield, Cheshire, today, killing 10-year-old Jackie Hood and injuring five other children. Neither Miss Brown nor her companion, a Capt. Brown, was hurt.

Miss Brown recently came into the limelight when King Amanullah, of Afghanistan, visited the Croydon aerodrome and chatted with her several minutes about her experiences as an aviator. Her plane today had been adapted to alight on a field 300 yards square surrounded by an eight-foot wall. Many of the spectators mounted this wall and others stood below it.

Miss Brown made several attempts to bring her machine down within the enclosure, but each time she was too close to the stone barrier and had to rise again. Finally she managed a landing in the center of the field, but finding it was impossible to stop her ground run without smashing into the wall she once more attempted to go upward.

The last time she failed to clear the wall. Her propeller struck the Hood boy in the head and the other children were injured by other portions of the plane as it smashed into the wall. The crowd scattered in panic and several women fainted.

CALIFORNIA RIVERS RISE; VALLEY TOWNS WARNED

Alarm Felt Lest Boca Dam Give Way; Watsonville Streets Flooded.

RENO, NEV., ALSO IS HIT

San Francisco, March 25 (A.P.).—Northern California rivers and streams swollen by recent rains went on a rampage today.

Four rivers—the Truckee, Sacramento, American and the Pajaro—all went out of bounds causing serious damage at widely separated points. Reno, Nev., reported sections of that city under five feet of muddy water tonight, with the Truckee River groaning under the heaviest load it has carried in years.

Some apprehension was felt tonight regarding the stability of the Boca Dam, at Boca, Calif., 22 miles from Reno. As the result of a terrific rainstorm in the mountains last night the dam was overflowing late today and some concern was felt over the strength of the earthen abutments to which the structure is anchored.

Slides and washouts along the lines of the Southern Pacific Railroad were frequent today in the Sierras, crippling train service.

All traffic over the Yolo causeway was held up in Sacramento today when the Sacramento and American Rivers flooded the highways. Reports said that many houses were under water. The heavy downpour in Sacramento and adjacent northern counties last night was responsible for the overflow there today.

From Watsonville reports were received saying that merchants were forced to put up barricades to prevent flood waters from the Pajaro River from damaging stocks. Several streets adjacent to the stream were flooded.

N. R. Raylor, United States weather forecaster at Sacramento, issued warnings to authorities in valley towns along the low areas to be prepared to move to high ground as the river was reported rising, being at the 27.3 mark at Sacramento.

Yosemite Valley reported a continuous downpour there for the last five days registered 5 1/2 inches of rain.

Train Robbers Foiled By Express Clerk

Cincinnati, Ohio, March 25 (A.P.).—Two armed men attempted unsuccessfully tonight to rob the safe of an express car of the Southern Railroad train No. 4. The men sprang into the express car at Lexington, Ky., overpowered Harvey Metter, express clerk, bound his hands and legs and held him prisoner until they left the train at Ludlow, Ky. Metter was relieved of $25, but he frustrated the robbers' plan to obtain valuables in the safe in the car by persistent refusal to open the vault.

British Fail to Reach Nanking Agreement

Shanghai, March 25 (A.P.).—It is officially announced that the efforts of the British Minister, Sir Miles Lampson, to arrange a settlement growing out of the anti-foreign outrages at Nanking in March, 1927, has failed. The minister is returning to Peking. Negotiations will continue, however, between the Chinese and the British Consul.

It is unofficially explained that the negotiations failed because Sir Miles refused to concede the Chinese demands for an expression of regret for shelling the Standard Oil Co.'s plant, known as Socony Hill, and for a revision of the treaties now in effect.

U. S. Girl Is Baptized At Windsor Castle

London, March 25 (A.P.).—Betty Lou Nedell, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Nedell, has the distinction of being the first American child baptized in St. George's Chapel at Windsor Castle and at the same font where King Charles II was christened. Friendship of her parents with the dean of Windsor brought this unusual privilege to the royal chapel.

The baby's godmother, Mrs. Lady Digby Lawson and the nurse, Sarah, the godfather was Philip Lord, of the United States Navy. Mrs. Nedell is an American actress who has made a success in London. Her mother was Olive Blakeney.

U.S. ENVOY THOUGHT OBJECT OF MEXICAN ROBBER BAND RAID

Attempt to Discredit Calles Is Seen; Gang Newly Armed.

AMBASSADOR'S ESCAPE IS DUE TO HIS DELAY

Holdup Men Rebels, Says Victim; Demanded Cash for "The Cause."

Mexico City, March 25 (A.P.).—Dwight W. Morrow, U. S. Ambassador to Mexico, received congratulations today on the fact that he missed a serious situation yesterday by a fairly close margin when the automobile in which he was traveling from Puebla passed the scene of a wholesale highway robbery less than three hours after the occurrence.

The fact that the Ambassador's party was behind its schedule led to the theory being entertained in some quarters that the hold-ups were staged with the idea of intercepting Mr. Morrow. Genaro Estrada, acting foreign minister, and other members of the party and thus cause embarrassment abroad to the administration of President Calles. Eye witnesses of the robberies asserted that members of the band shouted "Viva Christo Rey," the slogan of the "Catholic revolution." This circumstance was taken as support of the theory that the affair was really planned as a blow at the prestige of the administration.

Others, however, maintained that robbery was the principal motive of the gang.

Traffic Is Resumed.

Automobile and motor bus traffic, which was suspended after news of the hold-ups reached Mexico City, was resumed today with as many travelers as usual. Strong guards of soldiers were stationed in the vicinity of the double curve where the highwaymen laid their trap and at other points on the road that were considered dangerous. In the past guards have been maintained on the highway all the time, but the custom had been abandoned because it was thought that the route was safe.

Detachments of federal troops scouted the foothills of Popocatepetl and the mountain regions of the surrounding country seeking traces of the highwaymen. The authorities believe that the band of 50 had split up into small groups so as to hide the more effectively.

The United States Consulate at Puebla was unable to learn the identity of a man who, with his wife and baby, occupied the first private automobile that was stopped by the robbers. Witnesses said the family apparently was American and that after the robbery they proceeded toward Puebla. Consul Jenkins told the Associated Press that he had searched the hotels of Puebla and inquired of all American residents in that city without finding trace of any citizen of the United States who

City That Glitters Like Gold Is Found

Lima, Peru, March 25 (A.P.).—A city said to date back thousands of years and containing frame houses which from a distance give the appearance of glittering gold, has been discovered at a locality named Huayabamba, in the midst of a Peruvian mountain. El Tiempo says it has been informed by a prominent member of the British Museum of London.

$100,000 IN LIQUORS SEIZED ABOARD TRAIN

Norfolk, Va., March 25 (A.P.).—Assorted liquors valued at more than $100,000, according to prevailing bootleg prices, and the biggest single seizure of such contraband ever made by the Norfolk police was discovered this morning in a box car on the Norfolk Southern Railroad tracks. The freight bill shows the shipment originated at Havelock, N. C., and was billed as 20 barrels of sweet potatoes. The consignor was given as A. S. Reynolds, of Havelock, and the consignee as Bakstinski Bros., 102 South Water Market, Chicago.

The car contained 100 cases of cognac, 25 cases of imported malt and more than 3,000 quarts of rye whiskey. Fourteen barrels of sweet potatoes were placed in the middle of the car at the doors.

Man Shot on Steamer Once U. S. Navy Officer

Dover, England, March 25 (A.P.).—S. P. Geer, who was brought off from the steamer City of Alton suffering from a gunshot wound, is now declared to be a graduate of the United States Naval Academy and the commander of an American destroyer in the World War.

There still is no explanation of how the wound was inflicted. Examination shows that a bullet pierced his left side, just missing the heart, and lodged in the spine. The position makes it doubtful whether an operation can be performed.

Three Escape Injury When Plane Crashes

Capt. Ross G. Hoyt, of the Army Air Corps, and two friends who were going to fly to Atlantic City with him escaped serious injury yesterday when the engine of the plane which he was piloting failed and he was forced to land in a plowed field near Hoover Field, Arlington County, Va., breaking the undercarriage and the propeller. The plane came to a rest on the bank of the Little River with the wing dipped in the water.

The plane had just taken off from Hoover Field and was only 15 feet off the ground when it started to come down again. Henry A. Berliner, owner and builder of the plane, said that it will be repaired and ready to fly again in a few days. The plane, he said, was an experimental one. Capt. Hoyt, a widely known pilot, was a fellow student with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Kelly Field.

GIRL, 16, SERIOUSLY HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

Three Others Injured When Car Leaves Road After Hitting Telegraph Pole.

DRIVER HELD BY POLICE

Miss May Mitchell, 16 years old, of 3312 Thirty-seventh street, Mount Rainier, Md., a student at the Langley Junior High School, was seriously injured last night when the automobile in which she was riding crashed into a telegraph pole on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard near Berwyn, Md. Miss Mitchell was brought to Casualty Hospital and treated for a fracture of the skull, broken jaw and probable internal injuries. She was pinned beneath the wreckage of the machine. She is the daughter of James N. Mitchell.

Three others of the party were injured when the machine crashed into the pole as it attempted to pass two other machines on the way to Washington. They are:

Miss Marjorie Raberts, 16 years old, 515 H street northeast, lacerations to the knee; William Thomas Maney, 25 years old, 1027 B street southeast, lacerations to the knees, and Harry Farley, 17 years old, 1872 E street northeast, sprained shoulder.

Walter Edwards, 17 years old, 1103 East Capitol street, was driving the car. He is held at the Ninth Precinct Station for the Maryland authorities. Miss Mitchell was pinned beneath the car. Her injuries were undetermined at a late hour, but her condition was considered serious. The automobile in which they were riding was badly damaged.

Capitol Heights Boy Dies of Auto Hurts

Six-year-old Raymond Hackshaw, of Capitol Heights, Md., died last night at 8 o'clock in Casualty Hospital from a fractured skull received Friday afternoon when struck by an automobile while running across the street near his home.

Raymond Brown, of Forestville, Md., operator of the automobile which struck the boy and who brought him to Casualty Hospital, was held by police of the Ninth Precinct and turned over to the sheriff of Prince Georges County, pending the outcome of the boy's injuries.

ROW MAY END WORK ON 11 SKYSCRAPERS

Bricklayers and Steel Board in Dispute; Walkout at New York Today.

Special to The Washington Post.
New York, March 25.—Work on eleven skyscrapers under construction in mid-Manhattan will cease tomorrow and between 5,000 and 6,000 artisans will be added to the army of unemployed unless some means is found to settle differences between union bricklayers and members of the New York structural steel board, the building contractors' organization.

Members of the board claim the bricklayers' ultimatum is tantamount to a walkout proposal. The bricklayers, however, insist they are being locked out, inasmuch as the board laid off all its iron workers Saturday, making it impossible for the bricklayers to continue with their work. The difficulties grew out of the union's refusal to work on buildings employing iron workers engaged on open shop conditions. Officials of the steel board insist this condition has prevailed 25 years and they have no intention of engaging only union iron workers to keep peace with the bricklayers' union.

Earthquakes Continue At Oaxaca, Mexico

Mexico City, March 25 (A.P.).—Press dispatches continue to tell of alarming conditions in that city. They state that earth tremors of minor character have continued intermittently since the heavy shock of Wednesday night. More cracks have appeared in buildings and some rooms in the State capitol, including the offices of the supreme court, have been transferred to other structures because of damage to the walls and ceilings.

MISSISSIPPI "DRY" DELEGATION LIKELY TO BE ANTI-SMITH

Senator James A. Reed Also Handicapped in Vote Fight.

HOOVER SENTIMENT RESULT OF FLOOD

Any Hope of Republicans Winning State Election Futile to Leaders.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Jackson, Miss., March 25.—After a visit with Gov. Bilbo, talks with members of the legislature and a general survey of Democratic sentiment here, I find that this State expects to send a delegation to Houston which will be anti-Smith, anti-Reed, anti-wet, anti-moist and "theoretically dry." The governor believes that the delegation will be unopposed as to particular candidates, but may be instructed to vote against any "wet" candidate.

Bilbo himself is personally, as well as politically, dry. He caused some of the American League leaders a little concern a few months ago, however, by including a Biblical quotation in a statement to a New York newspaper to the effect that a little wine, is good for the stomach.

The governor told me yesterday that he put that quotation in simply by way of jest. He hopes to see the State go on record at Houston for the dry cause, though, like other leaders here, he frankly admits that anti-Volstead fluids flow rather freely in these parts. It is for this reason that the State is referred to as "theoretically dry." There is anti-Smith sentiment among the political leaders and among the rank and file.

Some Support for Smith.

There is support for Smith around Vicksburg and in the Southern part of the State. Some of the party leaders here are anticipating Smith's nomination, and say that Mississippi will accept the verdict, but must not be in the position of having actively taken the lead in bringing it about.

There is an element of caution among the legislators against anything which might embarrass as good Democrats in the event of Smith's becoming the nominee, and none takes seriously the idea that the State might go Republican under any circumstances. For example, some time ago the newspaper men here attempted to persuade the House to conduct a straw vote of its members on the question of whether they were for or against Smith. The legislators frowned on the plan, and voted to endorse Senator Harrison.

An attempt to solidify anti-Smith sentiment will be made tomorrow when the legislators are addressed by Mrs. Mary Harris Arthur, of Georgia, well-known W. C. T. U. speaker.

Mrs. Arthur, in her speeches in the South has said that the nomination of Smith would break up the Democratic party in the Southern States.

Senator Reed Handicapped.

The House has invited Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, to address the legislature, but the Senate has not yet acted on the proposition. Those who are against Smith also are against Reed. Besides the memory of Woodrow Wilson is sacred here, and is generally shared by the rank and file who applauded Wilson's picture to the echo whenever it is shown on the screen.

This constitutes an additional political handicap for Senator Reed, so far as the people of Mississippi are concerned.

The date for the Democratic State convention has not yet been set because the legislature is in a jam over Gov. Bilbo's program, and there is no telling when it will adjourn. The leaders would like to have the legislators footloose when both county and State conventions are held. But it may be necessary to go ahead with plans for the conventions without waiting for the adjournment of the legislature.

There is a sharp cleavage in Democratic ranks as a result of Bilbo's program, and the party is virtually divided now into pro-Bilbo and anti-Bilbo camps. The governor is trying to put through a State printing plant which would print the sessions laws, journals, etc., and all the books used in the public schools.

Divided Over Bilbo.

CLASHES EXPECTED TO ENLIVEN DEBATE ON SENATE FLOOR

Robinson, Indiana, Will Attack
New York Governor Again
Today, on Sinclair.

M'NEELY TO CRITICIZE COMMERCE SECRETARY

Committees Will Continue Oil,
Coal, Cotton and Other
Pending Inquiries.

But even with the disposition of the food control problem, Congress still has before it farm relief, Boulder Canyon Dam, tax reduction, Muscle Shoals and the naval building program—with two-thirds of its prospective session already gone.

While the House has acted on tax reduction and the naval program, and the Senate has completed work on Muscle Shoals, neither has taken up the farm relief and Boulder Canyon Dam measures on the floor. In the committee rooms still other legislative problems are fermenting and a host of investigations are being carried forward.

Oil and Coal Hearings

Senate committees during the week will resume inquiries into the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve leases, the bituminous coal strike and the break last fall in the cotton market.

The Senate, in addition, has pending the Couzens' resolution to have the Senate declare in favor of the resignation of Secretary Mellon, but action on this apparently has been postponed indefinitely.

The resolution has been sidetracked deep on the regular calendar business and while both sides seem ready for an early showdown, Senator Couzens, a Michigan Republican, was called away from the Capitol this week by the death of his colleague, Senator Ferris, a Pennsylvania Republican and leader of the opposition to the proposal, likewise is absent from the city.

Couzens will be in a position this week to tackle the big legislative problem—food control and farm relief—but politics, at least so far as the Senate is concerned, seems destined to receive first consideration.

Two presidential candidates—Herbert Hoover (Republican) and Gov. Al Smith (Democrat)—have been set up as targets for promised speeches in the Senate today. Senator Neely, a West Virginia Democrat, has given notice he will speak on Hoover's answer to Bora's prohibition questionnaire, and Senator Robinson, an Indiana Republican, has announced he will have something further to say about Smith's retention of Harry F. Sinclair on the New York Racing Commission during the Teapot Dome investigation.

Meanwhile, the Jones compromise food control bill, which has been whipped into shape after weeks of conferences so as to meet practically all conflicting views on this legislation, is ready to take its place on the Senate floor.

Unless Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, is able to get an early vote on his bill to establish migratory bird reservations, leaders expect to displace it with the food measure, which apparently faces a clear road to passage as a result of its compromise complexion.

Program in House.
At the other end of the Capitol the House also expects to receive a revised flood bill. Chairman Reid, of the House flood control committee, who also has been holding conferences, announced that a modified measure has been perfected and will be reported formally some time during the week.

The House today will devote its time to consideration of District of Columbia legislation. Tomorrow leaders plan to pass and send to the Senate the $399,000 Navy Department appropriation bill; devote Wednesday to bills on the calendar; and on Thursday take up the Senate resolution to postpone for another year the placing in operation of the national origin clause of the immigration act. As yet leaders have not determined what legislation will be considered the last two days of the week.

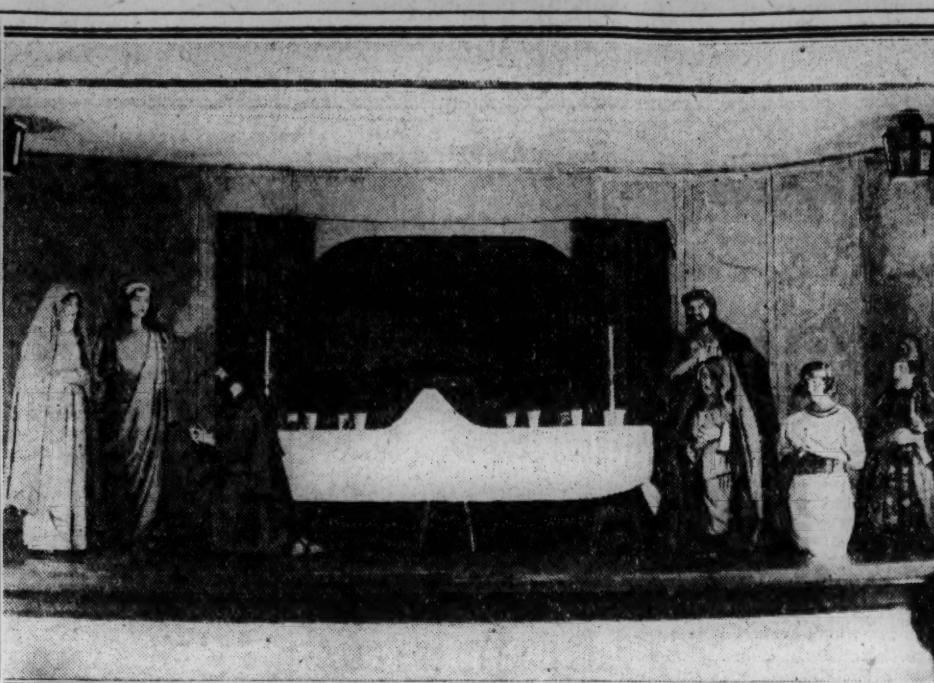

House Committee Activities.

Houses committees also will continue the industry they have displayed to date. In addition to the expected report of a new flood bill, the agriculture committee has set today for a vote on the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure, and a military subcommittee hopes to put finishing touches on a new bill to create a Government corporation to operate the Muscle Shoals properties in Alabama.

The House merchant marine committee also will be in session on a group of bills proposing various remedies for bolstering up the American merchant fleet, with Abernethy, a North Carolina Democrat, planning to renew his fight to have the committee approve only such proposals as it thinks will be acceptable to the Senate, which already has passed the Jones bill to continue Government operation.

The House foreign affairs committee will continue consideration of the Burton resolution to prohibit export from the United States of war munitions and their "component parts" to belligerent nations, a proposal that aroused opposition from both the War and Navy Departments.

MARYLAND DAY CLOSES BANKS IN MONTGOMERY

State Holiday to Be Observed
Today in the Suburbs of Capital.

ROAD HEARING TOMORROW

Yesterdays was Maryland day, a legal holiday in the State of Maryland.

The Senate, in addition, has pending the Couzens' resolution to have the Senate declare in favor of the resignation of Secretary Mellon, but action on this apparently has been postponed indefinitely.

The resolution has been sidetracked deep on the regular calendar business and while both sides seem ready for an early showdown, Senator Couzens, a Michigan Republican, was called away from the Capitol this week by the death of his colleague, Senator Ferris, a Pennsylvania Republican and leader of the opposition to the proposal, likewise is absent from the city.

Couzens will be in a position this week to tackle the big legislative problem—food control and farm relief—but politics, at least so far as the Senate is concerned, seems destined to receive first consideration.

Two presidential candidates—Herbert Hoover (Republican) and Gov. Al Smith (Democrat)—have been set up as targets for promised speeches in the Senate today. Senator Neely, a West Virginia Democrat, has given notice he will speak on Hoover's answer to Bora's prohibition questionnaire, and Senator Robinson, an Indiana Republican, has announced he will have something further to say about Smith's retention of Harry F. Sinclair on the New York Racing Commission during the Teapot Dome investigation.

Meanwhile, the Jones compromise food control bill, which has been whipped into shape after weeks of conferences so as to meet practically all conflicting views on this legislation, is ready to take its place on the Senate floor.

Unless Senator Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, is able to get an early vote on his bill to establish migratory bird reservations, leaders expect to displace it with the food measure, which apparently faces a clear road to passage as a result of its compromise complexion.

Program in House.
At the other end of the Capitol the House also expects to receive a revised flood bill. Chairman Reid, of the House flood control committee, who also has been holding conferences, announced that a modified measure has been perfected and will be reported formally some time during the week.

The House today will devote its time to consideration of District of Columbia legislation. Tomorrow leaders plan to pass and send to the Senate the $399,000 Navy Department appropriation bill; devote Wednesday to bills on the calendar; and on Thursday take up the Senate resolution to postpone for another year the placing in operation of the national origin clause of the immigration act. As yet leaders have not determined what legislation will be considered the last two days of the week.

House Committee Activities.

Houses committees also will continue the industry they have displayed to date. In addition to the expected report of a new flood bill, the agriculture committee has set today for a vote on the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure, and a military subcommittee hopes to put finishing touches on a new bill to create a Government corporation to operate the Muscle Shoals properties in Alabama.

The House merchant marine committee also will be in session on a group of bills proposing various remedies for bolstering up the American merchant fleet, with Abernethy, a North Carolina Democrat, planning to renew his fight to have the committee approve only such proposals as it thinks will be acceptable to the Senate, which already has passed the Jones bill to continue Government operation.

VIRGINIA FOREMAN HELD ON SUNDAY LAW

Police Halt Power Construction Work on Highway Near Centreville, Va.

Work of stringing power wires by members of a construction gang of the Virginia Public Service Co., near Centreville, Va., came to an abrupt halt yesterday when county police arrested the foreman on charges of working on Sunday and working on a public highway without a permit. A company truck driver, in charge of a vehicle parked nearby, was charged with obstructing the roadway.

The arrests followed a collision between a milk truck driven by R. A. Keyser, of Warrenton, Va., and a passenger car driven by a Washingtonian. Both drivers endeavored to pass the parked public service truck at the same time, it was reported. Police investigators made the arrests of the company's employees.

Those arrested were William Petty, the foreman, and B. J. Pindexter, driver of the truck. They were released on their personal recognizance for a hearing before Justice of the Peace R. D. Wharton, at Centreville, Thursday. Workmen composing the construction gang returned to Alexandria.

FOLGER BUILDING PLANS AWAIT END OF LEASES

Contemplated Structure to Have Famous Collection of Shakespeare's Works.

NEAR CONGRESS LIBRARY

Due to the fact that there are one or two leases which will not expire until summer, Henry C. Folger, of New York, who has recently made an announcement of his donation to the Capital of his famous Shakespearean collection, has not as yet considered the design for the contemplated building, which is to be erected near the Library of Congress as a home for this rare collection. It was learned yesterday.

The collection includes various sets of the first four folios, and it is said, over 30 copies of the first folio itself. It contains what is said to be the only known copy of the first collected edition, which contained original plays, but which preceded the collection known as the first.

The collection contains also the only known copy of the first edition of Titus Andronicus (1594) and a fragment of the third edition of Venus and Adonis, and also of the sixth edition. There are many others of which Mr. Folger has one copy among the two, three or four copies that exist.

Mr. Folger has taken many years of careful and costly research to procure the valuable copies of the first editions, which are included in his collection. Some of the great rarities which he possesses came from the collection of Marsden Perry, of Providence, R. I.; others came from English sources, such as the Halliwell-Phillips collection.

MARINES BRINGING PROGRESS TO MEN, CHAPLAIN ASSERTS

March With Spirit of Christ,
Lieut. Comdr. W. W. Witherspoon Tells Congregation.

per by Work That Corps Is Doing in That Country.

The United States Marine Corps marches in the spirit which Christ brought to mankind, Lieut. Comdr. M. M. Witherspoon, United States Navy chaplain, declared in a sermon last night at the First Congregational Church. He based his argument on the statement that Christ exemplified adventure, courage and service, all of which he claimed characterized the Marines. A group of Marine Corps enlisted men sat on the rostrum with Lieut. Comdr. Witherspoon.

"The men of the Marine Corps," said the preacher, "walk in the way first laid out by Christ. They are two-fisted fighting men, as he was. They have courage, as he had. They serve their fellow men, as he did."

Broader Religion Sought.

Lieut. Comdr. Witherspoon declared that modern religion emanated a broad point of view. He asserted that pacifism, preaching disarmament based their conclusions and their proposals on a one-sided outlook toward men and events. He argued for the fostering of a sympathetic understanding throughout the world in politics, economics and religion.

The work of the Marine Corps in carrying peace and prosperity to backward peoples was praised at length by Lieut. Comdr. Witherspoon.

HOOVER AND SMITH, SO FAR, HAVE EQUAL STRENGTH FOR PRIZE

Governor Has 50 More Estimated Votes, but Needs Two-Thirds to Reach Goal.

482 DELEGATES SEEN
OF 732 NECESSARY

Secretary's Fate Held to Lie in Lap of Mellon, Butler and Hilles.

By CHARLES BARGERON.
The American public has taken its first glimpse in hand to watch the country's two most romantic figures in their efforts to negotiate the last hurdle that lies between them and their party's nomination. Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Gov. Smith have come to that point where political history would stop them, but no one of their enthusiastic followers believes this will be their lot.

Injecting new elements into the country's political life, both are within 50 estimated votes of each other. Give the Secretary of Commerce a conservative estimate of 430 delegates and the governor 482. The governor is much farther from his goal because he must get 732 two-thirds, and the Secretary only 482, one-half of the ballots. Both, it is generally believed, will be nominated in the early balloting or not at all.

While these figures indicate that the task ahead of the Secretary is much easier than that of the governor, it is not necessarily so. Issues may come and issues may go between the present time and June, but the 482 delegates now estimated for the governor will be for him in June, and they will be for him a long time after the balloting has begun if the governor but so will. These 482 delegates will entertain no thought as to whether another nominee would be more effective with the corruption issue of the Democrats. To them, the issue is Smith, wet or dry, right or wrong. They have been well sold on the slogan of his managers: "He is the only man that can win."

On the other hand, of the 430 paper delegates accredited to Hoover, there

When You Go Abroad!

If you're thinking of going abroad without a wardrobe trunk—don't for a minute be misled concerning the restrictions by steamship companies as to the size or character of trunk you may take along.

Before you deprive yourself of the convenience and pleasure that only a good wardrobe trunk can give—

Remember These Facts:

On the larger liners, wardrobe trunks of any size are permitted to stand in the stateroom, for the convenience of the passenger, during the voyage.

In the smaller cabins, especially those shared by more than one person, it may be necessary for the trunks to be placed beneath the berth while not in use. In such cases a steamer model 15 inches high and 40 inches long is advised.

In addition, on the larger steamers, a baggage room is provided on each deck where trunks are accessible to passengers at specified hours each day.

Remember, Too

—that we shall be glad to furnish you with latest information regarding all steamships and baggage regulations applying to national and international travel... and equally glad, of course, to show you our complete new line of

are many who will run away, it is believed, at the slightest show of fight. The Secretary's nomination, in fact, lies in the hands of the three men, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Chairman W. M. Butler and for want of a better name in so far as the New York influence is concerned, Charles D. Hilles.

So they go down the home stretch, the two of them. One up from the sidelines of New York, championing the cause of urban America in protest against the hitherto political domination by the rural and less thickly populated sections, the conflict of the two being often mistaken for religious prejudice.

The other, a picturesque figure of the World War. Until that time a searcher of wealth in far-flung parts of the world, who after more than a score of years turned his ambitions homeward when Woodrow Wilson gave him his chance. Then, and it is one of the ironies of his career, there came a time when to capitalize this opportunity he had to choose between his obligation to Wilson and a political party that offered the better opportunity.

The story is told so often that it is a part of the Hoover lore, that in those days of 1920 when he did not know which party to embrace, he was sought by Norman Davis, Democratic stalwart of the Wilson school, and Julius H. Barnes, now president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, Republican. And in the end Barnes convinced him that if he ever expected to get anywhere politically in the future, it would have to be through the Republican party. There is a lot of truth in that observation.

Nightmares for Both.
Hoover and Smith have deliberated and made their choice. Appealing to the imagination, yet as contrasting as the poles, they nevertheless today are experiencing the same political nightmares. It would be a total rout for Hoover in the public mind, it is easily possible that the elimination of Smith might make for the selection of Hoover. Because it would remove the Eastern threat to the Republican. This possibility does not diminish the many things they have in common.

A rock of other candidates are barking at the heels of both, snapping, combining and threatening in many ways. Against the Secretary, former Gov. Lowden stands out most. Denied the nomination eight years ago largely because some of his money was used in buying delegates, the Governor is now back, almost timidly, asking for another chance. A campaign into Indiana, his native State, hopes to win both Fond du Lac and Green Bay. From Wisconsin he will go to Des Moines, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., then to Memphis, Tenn.

After several engagements in the South he will carry his speech-making campaign into Indiana, his native State, and then to Memphis, Tenn., where he will be entered in the primaries. He plans to winter up his tour in New York April 20.

A recent trip Reed went to the Pacific Coast, speaking in ten Southwestern and Western States. He is emphasizing the corruption issue.

was a victim of the holdup. He also said that press dispatches to Mexico City newspapers reporting that the American vice consul at Puebla had been kidnapped and held for ransom were unfounded.

Sure They Are Rebels.
Silvio Castellanos, Puebla correspondent for El Universal, a Mexico City newspaper, gave a graphic eyewitness account of the robbery. He said: "I believe the band was made up of insurgents, because they shouted 'Viva Cristo Rey!' Also, they asked first for arms and ammunition and they called for money only as 'contributions to the cause.'"

"The robbers were very polite. They used no threats and their commander, who was called by his name, returned some money to victims who complained that they were broke after making their 'contributions.' The chief also gave money to some poor women when search revealed that they possessed none."

"I myself had 20 pesos, and when I asked the leader for a loan of something for bus fare to Mexico City he handed me back 5 pesos."

"The highwaymen all carried brand new rifles. The arsenal on the wooden parts was still fresh and the weapons looked as if they had just come from a factory. Every man wore three or four belts filled with cartridges."

"I was in the first bus that was stopped. The bandits surrounded the machine and ordered the men out first. They told the women and children to leave no fear, that they would be treated with consideration. In the bus was a federal private soldier in uniform. The chief of the band told this man to stand aside, saying they would deal with him."

Soldier Changes Garb.
"We interpreted this to mean that they intended to kill the soldier. But while the robbers were searching us he begged a suit of overalls from the chauffeur, doffed his uniform and appeared in the guise of a workman by the time the robbers reached him."

"The man who was taken to be an American was traveling with his wife and child in a private machine and was stopped right after us. The robbers took his money, but did not molest his wife, even when she faintly and dropped rings and jewelry from her mouth. The man pleaded with the leader that he needed some money, so the chief gave him back $75."

"Machine after machine was stopped until there were 200 of us lined up on the highway. Then a government pay car arrived and a fight ensued between the highwaymen and the guards on that machine. A few of the robbers guarded us, while the others fought the pay car guards. Meanwhile, still other members of the band cut the telephone wires. Then the whole outfit suddenly retreated and we had a chance to lower our weary arms."

REED, OF MISSOURI, OFF FOR NEW SERIES OF CAMPAIGN TALKS

Senator Will Address North Carolina University Student Body Tonight.

WISCONSIN TO HEAR HIM BEFORE PRIMARY

Will Swing Through Iowa and
Nebraska and Return Through Southern States.

(Associated Press.)
Senator Reed, of Missouri, already a much traveled presidential candidate, set out last night on another stumping tour which will take him into a dozen or more Southern and Central Western States. It also will afford him an opportunity to deliver at least three speeches in Wisconsin before the April 3 Democratic primary, that State, where he is fighting it out with Gov. Smith of New York and Senator Walsh, of Montana.

After speeches beginning tonight at Hight Point, N. C., Reed will address the University of North Carolina student body and talk in Raleigh, N. C., Asheville and Knoxville, Tenn., before turning northward to Wisconsin. Neither Smith nor Walsh will invade the State before the primaries a week from Tuesday.

The Missouri senator speaks in Milwaukee Saturday night, addresses University of Wisconsin students next Sunday and on the day before the primary, hopes to visit both Fond du Lac and Green Bay. From Wisconsin he will go to Des Moines, Iowa, and Omaha, Neb., then to Memphis, Tenn.

After several engagements in the South he will carry his speech-making campaign into Indiana, his native State, and then to Memphis, Tenn., where he will be entered in the primaries. He plans to winter up his tour in New York April 20.

A recent trip Reed went to the Pacific Coast, speaking in ten Southwestern and Western States. He is emphasizing the corruption issue.

New Camera Sextant To Aid Air Navigation

Lakehurst, N. J., March 25 (A.P.). The invention of a camera sextant, the patents for which were issued last December, has been announced by its inventor, Commander Maurice R. Pierce, U. S. N., of the naval air station.

With this instrument, astronomical sights can be taken with great rapidity and are virtually devoid of personal error. The invention will be of great value, not only to aeronautical navigation, but also to surface navigation. It is expected.

Commander Pierce was navigating officer of the naval dirigible Los Angeles on flights to Bermuda and Porto Rico and was the senior naval officer on the Shenandoah when it broke away from the mooring mast in Lakehurst in 1924.

MISSISSIPPI SEEKS "DRY" CANDIDATE

Bilbo's friends have the delegation instructed to vote against any "wet" candidate.

There is something individualistic and independent about many of the political leaders, and this rather militates against the idea of taking advance orders. There is, therefore, much support for the idea that the delegation should go uninstructed, and then rely upon its own wisdom when developments begin to unfold in Houston.

Also it is pointed out that instructions to vote against a wet would raise the question of What is a wet? The Antislavery League, however, who are opposed to the Volstead act as clearly coming within the accepted definition of wet. But Woodrow Wilson, the idol of the Democracy in this State, opposed the Volstead act and vetoed it, so that admittedly raised another complication.

Much Hoover Sentiment.
There is much Hoover sentiment here among the Democrats, due largely to Hoover flood relief work in the State. It is surprising to hear so many Democrats say they are anxious to discontinue the administration of Hoover, but add that neither Hoover nor any other Republican would have the slightest chance of carrying the State in November.

Hoover himself is quoted as having said when he was here last fall that even if he brought the whole United States Treasury to Mississippi and turned it over to the State, the people still would vote the Democratic ticket.

Democrats who vote the Republican ticket in the State become disgraced for a considerable period, so far as their own future Democratic votes are concerned.

In other words, they become political outcasts and must remain so. Also those who vote the Republican electors in November find themselves voting for colored men against whites, and this idea seems to be unthinkable to the average Southern Democrat.

The newspapers in the State are anti-Smith, but the news is less pronounced in their views than others. The Daily Clarion-Leader here, and the Jackson Daily News reflects the attitude of the majority of the State. The two Vicksburg papers, the Laurel Leader, the Meridian Star, the Gulfport Herald and the Greenville Commercial are the other important Democratic papers in the State.

M'BRIDE SEES RETURN OF LIQUOR IF WETS WIN

Points Out Methods by Which the President Can Let Down Barriers.

URGES DRY MOBILIZATION

Pittsburgh, March 25 (A.P.).—Prohibition sentiment must be mobilized effectively so that "enlightened public will place in positions of authority, from President to mayor, only men who will stand by the Constitution and the necessary laws for its enforcement," Dr. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the Antislavery League, declared in an address at the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church here today.

"The wets want a brother wet in the White House," McBride said, "because the next President probably will appoint a majority of the members of the Supreme Court who pass upon the constitutionality of all prohibition legislation. He also chooses the Secretary of the Treasury, who with subordinate officers, is responsible for enforcement of prohibition; he names the Attorney General, who has charge of prosecution of the liquor criminals; he picks the Secretary of State who must settle the international problems involved in liquor smuggling. Federal judges and the whole army of other Federal officials depend upon the President for appointment."

"Once allow the liquor element to gain control of the White House and the damage they could do to the enforcement of prohibition would be irreparable," the Antislavery superintendent asserted.

"Half the people of these United States are 25 years of age or under," McBride continued. "Many of these have never known what the old-time liquor traffic meant. We must inform them concerning the perils inherent in that traffic."

Delos to Keep Danzig Post.
Warsaw, Poland, March 25 (A.P.).—The Swiss Col. Delos, who has been president of the port commission at the free city of Danzig, will continue at his post another three years, to April 24, 1931, by an agreement between the Polish government and the Danzig senate, which was announced today.

MAYOR THOMPSON SPLITS WITH 'SPORT' HERRMANN

Chicago Official Is Suffering From Dementia Paradox, Old Ally Says.

WILL NOT BACK SMALL

Chicago, March 25 (A.P.).—The dubious paths of politicians have brought Mayor William Hale Thompson and U. S. J. "Sport" Herrmann to the cross-roads of their friendship less than six months after "Sport" headed the mayor's committee to purge the Chicago Library of pro-British books.

The political break of the two former allies was revealed today when Mr. Herrmann, sportsman and theater owner, made known he would hoist a banner for Louis L. Emmerson as his choice for governor, despite Thompson's renewed alliance with Gov. Len Small who is seeking renomination against Emmerson.

Herrmann, who first gained prominence in the mayor's recent anti-British crusade when he announced he would make a bonfire on the lake front and thus destroy the pro-British reading he might find lurking in the library shelves, said he could not fathom the mayor's reasoning in supporting Small and that he would unfurl a banner for Emmerson even if Thompson should deny him a permit to string it up in front of his Loop Theater.

"I'll put up the banner, permit or not," "Sport" said, "and if necessary I'll sit in my office and guard it with a shotgun if any one tries to take it down."

Herrmann said the mayor apparently was suffering from "dementia paradox." "I would say he is contrary," he said. "I can't figure out why he would climb back on the governor's band wagon after the way the governor double-crossed him."

"Sport" said, however, he still was friendly with the mayor outside of politics.

Stiff and Achy After Grip?

Colds and Chills Are the Cause of Many Functional Kidney Disorders.

ARE you getting over a cold or grip only to find yourself feeling always lame and stiff—tired and achy? Are you bothered with nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness? Are the kidney secretions too frequent, scanty or burning in passage? Then you should give some thought to your kidneys!

Winter's colds and chills place extra burdens on the kidneys. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes.

Such impurities make one dull, tired and achy with often a nagging backache, headache and dizziness. A common symptom of imperfect kidney action is too frequent, scanty or burning secretions.

If you have reason to believe your kidneys are acting sluggishly, assist them with Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic. Doan's increase the secretion of the kidneys and thus aid in the elimination of waste impurities. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They are endorsed the country over. Ask your neighbor!

BUSINESS CONTINUES TO MOVE UPWARD, DESPITE HANDICAPS

Arrival of Spring Brings Especial Improvement in Retail Lines.

STEEL INDUSTRY STILL MAINTAINS LEADERSHIP

Auto Trade Expanding—Car Loadings Shrink—Improvement in Textiles.

New York, March 25 (A.P.)—The upward trend of American business continued gradually last week, although handicapped by irregularities here and there. The advance of spring has brought considerable improvement, particularly in retail lines, and some of the so-called heavy industries again made satisfactory strides.

The steel industry maintained its leadership of the entire field, its business holding up at such an extent that it is now certain that the first quarter showing this year will exceed that of 1927 in a substantial amount.

Buying for the accounts of railroads, automobile manufacturers, and structural concerns has been the major factor in the forward movement of this branch of trade. Operations were particularly strong in the Chicago district, where 95 per cent of capacity was reported. Eastern centers varied from 80 to 85 per cent. The Western market reported a further marking up of finished steel prices, coincident with a good volume of orders from makers of oil tanks.

Steady Demand for Motors.

Further expansion of the motor trade reflected continued steady demand. A statement by John J. Baskob, chairman of the board of General Motors Corporation, predicting record breaking earnings in the first quarter, inasmuch as production has been running well ahead of last year's first quarter, was an outstanding feature. This explained, in part, the remarkable advance of General Motors stock in the New York market.

Car loadings tended downward slightly from the preceding week, and because of enormous coal shipments at this time last year, the 1928 figures continued to fall far behind those of 1927.

Some slight improvement was shown in the textile division, notably in cotton goods, where a steady demand was reported for current and nearby requirements. Woolens and worsteds, however, continued to move slowly. Prices on some fabrics for women's wear were increased moderately as quotations for fall lines were opened. A sharp decline was reported in Japanese silk prices.

Advances in Zinc Prices.

In nonferrous metals, further advances in zinc prices featured the week, although copper was a shade lower. Cheerful reports from the Pacific Northwest created new optimism in the lumber trade, although some of the hardwood markets in the Mississippi Valley were rather quiet.

The stock market continued to hold with activity, sales exceeding 3,000,000 shares for 11 consecutive full days, and surpassing the 2,000,000 mark on two straight Saturdays. As a barometer of the business future, however, the stock market is hardly reliable, the enormous activity and strength being influenced by the operations of powerful pools against the short interest, and the attraction of a flood of "outside buying" as the public sought to reap profits in the boom market.

Further shipments of gold to South America, Germany and England had little, if any, effect on the money market. Time loans and commercial paper rates remained virtually unchanged throughout the week.

In utilities, the $225,000,000 merger of the Mackay companies with the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., into a communication system covering most of the civilized world, was the undisputed feature.

Bank clearings increased materially over the preceding week, as well as the corresponding period of 1927.

Big Surplus Shown By Philippine Bank

(By the Associated Press.) The Philippine National Bank has accumulated a surplus in excess of 50 per cent of its capital stock, the War Department announced yesterday, stating the auditor's memorandum just received places the surplus at $5,038,138 pesos. The bank also has set up the reserve for the liquidation of the amount which the United States assumed in taking over the losses of the bank.

It also has paid the Government 99,414 pesos as the first payment on account of deposits and capital surrendered during the past week.

Hereafter, under the act, three-fourths of the net profits of the bank will be paid into the treasury of the United States.

Reinvestment buying, which this year has not gathered the force which was evidenced in early 1927, also was a factor in the week's firm trend. Many buyers have been disposed to hold off pending a reduction in prices for listed mortgages, but the lowering of quotations had been extremely moderate.

The material tightening of the money market, which had been widely predicted around the middle of February, and even earlier, has not yet developed, and this fact may have influenced some bond traders to resume their buying. Large shipments of gold have been made in recent weeks, particularly to South America, and the Federal Reserve has continued to hold off pending a reduction in prices for listed mortgages, but the lowering of quotations had been extremely moderate.

Neither new offerings nor buying of listed bonds this year has so much as approached the record-breaking volume of the early weeks of 1927. It is a natural supposition, then, that there is a large amount of money available for the most profitable time to find employment in bond investment.

Current buying movement doubtless has resulted from the transfer of some of these funds from other usages to the bond market. No particular new issues have appeared on the market in the last two weeks with the exception of the $30,000,000 Inland Steel loan, which found a ready reception in the ranks of dealers. Other new issues have fallen well below the $20,000,000 mark, but the total for the past week was close to the average for the year.

The aggregate $114,000,000, compared with $74,000,000 in the preceding week, the second smallest volume of the year, and with $123,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1927.

New loans in negotiation are not especially numerous or large. There are a few of formidable proportions, which are expected to reach the offering stage in the near future, including some German, Czechoslovakian and Roumanian issues, as well as others from Central European points. A $35,000,000 advance to the Republic of Colombia has been arranged by a New York banking group and offering probably will shortly be forthcoming.

Municipal and State bonds continued fairly numerous, but in the main of small size. An exception was the recent issue of $25,000,000 New York City securities, which were sold with reasonable promptness, considering the low rate of interest, the last of them being placed in the hands of dealers in the last week.

The feature of the bond market was the heavy initial trading on Friday in Wabash 4½s.

New issues admitted to trading during the week included American shares of the French Line, first foreign issue to be traded on the curb.

Safe Stores led the chain stores issues upward, advancing 38 points. There were also gains of 18 points by Deere & Co., 16 by U. S. L. Battery and 10 by Libby Owens and Kalamazoo Stove on speculative buying.

Q. R. S. similarly was lifted 13 points net. Announcement that no extra dividends would be declared caused a bad break in Bancitaly, and it closed the week more than 7 points lower. Profit taking caused losses of 3 to 10 points in other industrial issues.

Utilities were generally strong. Power Securities preferred gained 10 points and Central States Electric 14. Electric Bond & Share showed reactionary tendencies.

Oils and pipe lines were in little demand, although Cities Service and Standard of Kansas moved to new high ground.

PRICES OF BONDS SOAR TO YEAR'S TOP LEVELS

Week's Trading Is Centered Largely on Utilities; Rail Issues Are Firm.

MONEY CONTINUES EASY

New York, March 25 (A.P.)—The bond market last week was one of the most active of the year and a steady advance of prices carried many issues to the highest levels of the year or longer. Particular interest was manifested in public utility bonds, largely because of the recent expansion of the list of bonds in that group which are legal for savings bank investment in New York State.

Railroad issues also followed a firm trend, probably influenced in part by the comparatively small volume of new offerings coming into the market in the past two weeks. Reinvestment buying, which this year has not gathered the force which was evidenced in early 1927, also was a factor in the week's firm trend. There are a few of formidable proportions, which are expected to reach the offering stage in the near future, including some German, Czechoslovakian and Roumanian issues, as well as others from Central European points. A $35,000,000 advance to the Republic of Colombia has been arranged by a New York banking group and offering probably will shortly be forthcoming.

Municipal and State bonds continued fairly numerous, but in the main of small size. An exception was the recent issue of $25,000,000 New York City securities, which were sold with reasonable promptness, considering the low rate of interest, the last of them being placed in the hands of dealers in the last week.

The feature of the bond market was the heavy initial trading on Friday in Wabash 4½s.

New issues admitted to trading during the week included American shares of the French Line, first foreign issue to be traded on the curb.

Safe Stores led the chain stores issues upward, advancing 38 points. There were also gains of 18 points by Deere & Co., 16 by U. S. L. Battery and 10 by Libby Owens and Kalamazoo Stove on speculative buying.

Q. R. S. similarly was lifted 13 points net. Announcement that no extra dividends would be declared caused a bad break in Bancitaly, and it closed the week more than 7 points lower. Profit taking caused losses of 3 to 10 points in other industrial issues.

Utilities were generally strong. Power Securities preferred gained 10 points and Central States Electric 14. Electric Bond & Share showed reactionary tendencies.

Oils and pipe lines were in little demand, although Cities Service and Standard of Kansas moved to new high ground.

North American Co. Income Increases

New York, March 25 (A.P.)—Net income for the North American Co. in 1927 was $19,254,647, equivalent to $4.06 per share on the average number of shares of common stock outstanding, the pamphlet report showed today. Income for 1926 was $17,563,507, or $3.85 per share. The common stock was increased in 1927 to 4,514,863 shares of no par value from 4,091,322 shares of $10 par value in 1926.

The end of the year showed nearly a million customers served by the company's electric service alone, President F. L. Dame said. Continuation of the corporation's original policies, he added, are protection against "any apprehension of a frank and fair survey of its administrative principles through the medium of either the United States Senate or the Federal Trade Commission."

Big Gain in Exports Reported for 1927

(By the Associated Press.) American exports of manufactured goods were declared yesterday by Dr. Julius Klein, chief of the Commerce Department's foreign service to be the "prosperity balance" of the Nation's economic structure. A study just completed for Dr. Klein shows that 1927 exports of manufactures from the United States had a value of $2,000,000,000, or 2½ times the comparable total of 1914 and six times the total of 1900.

BRITAIN'S LATEST PROPOSAL.

The British government has sent a note to the American, French and Japanese governments making "concrete proposals which Great Britain would like to see in effect before the beginning of the capital ship replacement program provided for by the Washington convention." The proposals are as follows:

1. Reduce in size any battleships to be built in the future from 35,000 tons to something under 30,000 tons.
2. Reduce in size the guns of battleships from the present limit of 16 inches to 13.5 inches.
3. Extend the accepted life of existing capital ships from 20 to 26 years.

Having just completed two 35,000-ton battleships, the Nelson and Rodney, the British government is perfectly willing that no other battleships be built above 30,000 tons. As these new ships carry 16-inch guns, the British government suggests that other nations cut down the size of their guns to 13.5 inches. And in order to maintain British superiority in battleships as long as possible, the British government suggests that the accepted life of existing ships be extended to 26 years.

The fair and honest thing for Great Britain to do, if it wishes to reduce the size of battleships, is to scrap the Nelson and Rodney.

What Great Britain proposes is the rupture of the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon at Washington. Permanent superiority in battleships is the aim of the British proposal.

In 1922 the United States scrapped valuable modern vessels in order to come down to parity with Great Britain in the matter of battleships. It was thoroughly understood that this parity principle should apply to cruisers and other auxiliary vessels, although the treaty did not include them specifically. Immediately after the treaty had been made both Great Britain and Japan began the construction of 10,000-ton cruisers, and both are now much stronger than the United States in that respect.

Last summer the United States suggested that the three powers apply the 5-5-3 ratio to auxiliary vessels, as informally agreed upon in 1922. Great Britain refused to make such an agreement.

President Coolidge thereupon recommended to Congress a building program, which, while it would be within the 5-5-3 ratio, would have brought the United States Navy measurably nearer to a parity with the British navy. Pacifist and foreign propaganda then combined with unparalleled energy and audacity in an effort to defeat the American defensive program, and succeeded in reducing the building program from $780,000,000 to $274,000,000. The bill passed by the House provides for only fifteen cruisers and one airplane carrier. Provision for submarines, destroyer leaders, &c., was stricken from the bill.

Now comes the British government with the proposal that new American battleships shall be limited to 30,000 tons, while the British battleships Rodney and Nelson, of 35,000 tons each, shall be exempted from the 30,000-ton limitation for the next 26 years.

This proposal is the most sinister attack upon Anglo-American relations that has been made since the British government refused to apply parity to auxiliary ships. It not only disgusts all Americans who had clung to the belief that the disagreement at Geneva was merely a misunderstanding and not the result of Britain's determination to outbuild the United States, but it tends to destroy all faith in any efforts to make treaties renouncing war. It also intensifies the determination of the American Government and people to refuse to extend the 5-5-3 treaty unless guarantees are forthcoming to insure its faithful observance by the other signatories.

The danger point will be reached in 1931, when the great naval powers must agree or disagree to continue in force the Washington treaty.

The British government has done its best to alienate American cooperation by its refusal to abide by the spirit of the Washington treaty and by making the unfair proposal that British battleships shall be larger than American battleships, and with heavier guns. The proposal is an insult to American intelligence and unless withdrawn will stand as a bar against any naval agreement whatever with Great Britain.

THE RADIO BILL.

The Senate has adopted the conference report on the radio bill, and it now goes to the White House for signature. In the usual course of affairs the President will refer it to the Secretary of Commerce and the Radio Commission for report before he takes final action. The new bill unquestionably will not meet with the full approval of the commission, yet in view of the controversy that has raged around its enactment it seems to be the best that can be obtained.

The new bill provides for a so-called equitable distribution of station power, limits the license of broadcasting stations to periods of three months and of commercial stations to one year, and provides that the terms of members of the commission be limited to one year from March 14. At the end of the year new commissioners will have to be appointed and the commission will sit, as provided for in the original legislation, as an appellate and review body.

There is doubt as to whether the compromise bill will prove workable. The equal distribution clause will be difficult to administer, but Congress, actuated by the belief that a monopoly exists or is threatened, concluded that only through a limitation of this sort can the interests of the public be safeguarded. Debate on the measure has been heated and bitter. Both sides have made convincing arguments and the public has become confused. This phase of radio control now has become history, however, and interest centers upon future developments. The commission, once the President has signed the bill, should devote its entire attention to trying to straighten out the radio middle that still exists.

MOths IMMUNITY.

Confirming and yet qualifying the common faith in the virtue of cedar as a discourager of moths, the Bureau of Entomology has made report of extensive experiments. While its investigations are not concluded, it states that the presence of red cedar does not itself insure the absence of moths. It is the presence of oil in the cedar that counts. Naturally, this is in ratio to the quantity of the cedar wood, used for lining a chest or closet.

The oil of cedar is given off in the form of a gas. Permeating and penetrating, this gas finds its way into the closest of fabrics which become the prey of moths and saturates them with the odor that is so repellent to the destructive insect. It is a case of asphyxiation. The moth coming under the influence of the gas is destroyed.

The breeding moth avoids a cedar chest or closet that is pungent with the gas. If the volume of the cedar oil gas is not sufficient to discourage the adult moth it may yet be in sufficient strength to destroy the young moths. The working out of all the details of the subject will provide exact information as to moth immunity through red cedar.

THE DRUG EVIL.

Since the Geneva conference closed without taking any action for the suppression of the illicit traffic in drugs, with the American delegates firm in their stand for a world agreement, this country has been looked to for moral leadership in the contest that has come so prominently to the fore during the last decade. It is therefore not surprising to find Premier Mussolini ranging himself alongside the persons who have practical and scientific knowledge of the nature and extent of the drug peril and are bent upon fighting it. Various of the outstanding statesmen and rulers of Europe have gone on record with similar sentiments, although they have not imitated Mussolini in his promise to come to the United States to attend the proposed world conference on the drug problem.

The acts of bandits and bootleggers are often made more diabolical by drugs, through which addicts lose their moral inhibitions, sense of fear, and respect for law. They perpetrate crimes of enormity with insane heedlessness of consequences. The chief of the bureau of criminal investigation of New York has said that 50 to 75 per cent of crime is traceable to drugs. While statistics vary, the opinion of experts is in agreement as to the range of drug addiction in America. The records of the New York workhouse show that the cost of treatment for 429 addicts, some of whom received treatment many times, amounted in the aggregate to $207,300. Here is an economic aspect of the devastating vice, whose victims swell the ranks of the dependent, the defective and the delinquent classes of society to alarming proportions.

IS ENGLISH IN DANGER?

Sir Richard Arthur Surtess Paget is naturally enough proud of the language which prevails throughout the British Empire and elsewhere. He may be right in claiming that English is the best language in the world, but the reason he assigns for that outstanding excellence—"because in it words are spoken in the order in which they occur in thought"—would apply with equal point and force to any modern analytic language like, say, French or Italian.

Speaking at a meeting of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce, held in New York on Wednesday last, Sir Richard showed a laudable desire to retain on its present high pinnacle the language to which he gave such unstinted praise. He noticed and deplored a tendency to develop many meanings for one word, and expressed the fear that, if that process were to continue without check, a time might come in the not too distant future when the present English-speaking nations would be unable to understand one another. To prevent such a calamity, he urged that all the peoples speaking the English language should get together—through accredited representatives, presumably—and agree on some basic principles to keep the growth of the language orderly.

That there are many meanings for one word in the English language is a self-evident proposition. As The Post pointed out the other day, the new Oxford Dictionary devotes over eight hundred pages to explaining the various meanings of the little word "set," and treats it under 154 main divisions. So long, however, as all the English-speaking countries keep the same meaning or meanings for each word, there is but little fear of a failure of one to understand another. The frequency of intercourse, the diffusion of knowledge, and, especially, the multiplication of dictionaries are all factors making for common and easy intelligibility. Besides, attempts to regulate the spread and growth of a living language and to fix it in an unchanging and stereotyped form are doomed to failure. Jonathan Swift, with all his ability and the great prestige he then enjoyed, put forward some such proposal in the days of Queen Anne, but even the magic of his name could not put it over and it fell as flat as the proverbial pancake. The growth of a living language is like running water—it can't be stopped, and can only with extreme difficulty be regulated. Anyhow, English is in no real danger.

A MELTING UNIVERSE.

In a lecture entitled "The Wider Aspects of Cosmogony," delivered recently in London by Dr. J. H. Jeans, secretary of the Royal Society, a picture was drawn which in one way is calculated to strike terror into the minds of human beings. Dr. Jeans affirmed that observation and theory agreed in indicating that the universe is melting away into radiation, and that the position of mankind is that of polar bears on an iceberg that has broken loose from the icepack surrounding the pole, and is inexorably melting away as the iceberg drifts to warmer latitudes and ultimate extinction. Neither the bears nor the human beings would appear to be particularly safe under such circumstances.

There are, nevertheless, certain elements of consolation. Whatever may be the fate of the bears, and however near their end may be, humanity need expect no particularly short shrift. According to Dr. Jeans, the evidence of geology, and of radio-activity in rocks in particular, shows that the earth must be something like two thousand million years old, which is several thousand times the age of the human race. He is also of opinion that in all probability the life in front of mankind must enormously exceed the short life behind it, that a million million years hence, so far as can be foreseen, the sun will be much the same as it is now, and the earth will be revolving around it in much the same old way. The year may probably be somewhat longer, and the climate will certainly be quite a lot colder, while the rich accumulated stores of coal, oil and forest will have been long burnt up; but there is no reason why the descendants of those now alive should not then continue to people the earth, for the race, being 3,000,000 times as old as it is now, should be at least 3,000,000 times as wise, and therefore well able to accommodate itself to changed conditions.

It is also comforting to realize that, although the sun is wasting away daily—Dr. Jeans puts its wastage at 360,000 million tons—and the radiation of the stars is imposing an endlessly recurring capital levy upon their masses, both sun and stars will last for ages and ages yet to come.

Science is great, for, when it administers the bane, it usually provides the antidote.

NOT A HELP TO JUSTICE.

A great many individuals, lawyers as well as laymen, are of the opinion that the thing that hampers the administration of justice most is the mass of technicalities that stand between the facts in a given case and a verdict. Legal practice has created a series of provisions, thought at one time to be safeguards, but which now form a labyrinth in which criminals manage to evade the penalty for their acts. The public insists upon simplification of the rules and procedure governing the conduct of the courts, so that there may be fewer evasions and less delay.

In view of this conviction, it is surprising to find that the Senate, which has many lawyers among its members, should have passed without a dissenting vote the Caraway bill designed to limit still further the power of Federal judges. The measure which the Arkansas senator has sponsored would prevent any member of the Federal judiciary from expressing his opinion as to the credibility of witnesses or the weight of evidence in his charge to the jury. The bill further provides that the charge on the question of law involved shall be made prior to the closing arguments of counsel. In addition to voting for the measure several of the Senate's lawyers made speeches in behalf of the bill, in which they expressed the opinion that the injection of the jurists' opinions in effect removed the right of trial by jury.

Recent events have done far more to discredit the jury system than the Federal judiciary. What the Caraway bill proposes in substance is, that regardless of the intricacies of a case, no assistance shall be given the jury in considering the evidence other than that which it may gain from the necessarily partisan remarks of counsel. It would deprive the Federal judicial system of the knowledge and experience which members of the bench have gained through long years of training to distinguish between what is false and true, what is important and immaterial, germane and irrelevant. This bill would benefit the lawyers, but it is questionable whether it would serve justice or the common good.

American jurisprudence has gone a long way from English procedure and gained but little. There the judge has almost arbitrary powers. He advises the jury with respect to the entire case, but that very often that body of the accused man's peers does nothing more than the bench has instructed and directed it to do. Enactment of the Caraway bill would make the Federal judges of the United States nothing more than referees, with no power whatever to further the ends of justice.

There are two kinds of men—those who do foolish things and those who take the advice of their wives.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

SYMPATHY is a quality man generates within himself without conscious effort. He doesn't make it to order. Asking him for it usually makes him incapable of giving it.

He sees a tramp in silent misery and feels sympathy. But he steels his heart if a tramp appears and asks for sympathy.

The explanation is not easily found. But it may be that modern man hardens his heart against a tale of woe because primitive man found in tales of woe a menace to himself.

If Caveman Ug had wounds to show or pains to describe, Caveman Wong might get similar wounds from a new tiger in the district or catch Ug's disease. In time he would learn to think each tale of woe a prophecy of trouble for himself, and thereafter he would hate the man with a sad story to tell.

It was no uncommon thing for the ancients to stone the bearer of ill tidings.

Whatever the primitive cause and the present reason, modern man is annoyed and disheartened and depressed by the story of another's troubles and tribulations.

He begins the day resolved to forget his own sorrows and burdens; he steps out briskly, with his head up; he contrives a smile; in short, he kids himself.

Then a friend appears whose troubles are no greater than his own, but whose standard of good sportsmanship is considerably lower. The friend is feeling sorry for himself; he feels abused; he has a grouch, and his vanity and his yellow streak unite in urging him to tell the world about it. Tell the world he does, and the man resolved to be cheerful finds his sun clouded by another's gloom.

It is a free country, but one man's rights end where another's begin. The law regards words as weapons; to hurt a man with words is no less an offense than to hurt him with a club.

To steal his happiness is no more right than stealing his purse. To burden him with your woe is no more fair than to burden him with your debts.

As to the objection that man shouldn't fly because it isn't his nature, think how many times he falls while learning to walk.

"You can't prove anything by statistics." Oh, yes, you can. You can prove a man is drunk by asking him to pronounce it.

The final test of personality comes when you tell the raiding party you are there merely as a social investigator.

Years of patient study, result at last in a combination of chemicals that will make teeth almost as white as a dog's.

call for frozen celery and olives in a big platter of ice; another, to order a lot of ice with oysters or clams. Isn't such paternalism just about the height of the ridiculous?

Commonplace label.
Brooklyn Eagle: Films branding the late Abdul He id of Turkey as an assassin are held by Paris court to be libelous, because screened show is nothing but fiction. Really, we suppose, the late sultan would have laughed at being libeled by anything so commonplace as assassination.

Crying "Wolf."
Baltimore Sun: Perhaps that dog owner in Birmingham is going to be lucky henceforth, but his case in the matter of his stolen chow suggests trouble. True enough, the animal returned home soon after his owner had spread the story that the animal had been calling in a house under quarantine for smallpox and was itself even then under observation. This was all right for once, and yet the chances are that when next the dog disappears and the smallpox story is again circulated, an anonymous letter will be received announcing that, sad to say, the disease proved fatal.

Indiana May Turn the Scale.
To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Hoosiers in Washington are watching with a good deal of interest the Hoover-Watson campaign in Indiana. Indiana has always been looked upon as one of the doubtful States in presidential years. It has also been regarded as one of the necessary States for the Republicans. This promises to be a campaign that will be very close, neither party having a large margin to draw upon.

With Gov. Smith as the Democratic candidate it may be possible for the Republicans to gain something from the South, but that is not at all certain. With the solid South for him Indiana may turn the scale. The Republicans can not afford to take any chances. They must nominate a man who can carry Indiana. Senator Watson is stronger in Indiana than any other man talked about for the nomination. He is a native of the State; he has served the State long and faithfully. Since the days of the late Senator Oliver P. Morton there has been no man who has served the State better than Watson has done, and there has been no man more popular with the Hoosiers. He has always carried more than his party strength. He will be endorsed by the primary and go into the convention with a solid and enthusiastic State delegation behind him.

WAFFLES AND SIRUP.
We sometimes happen on to unexpected means for accomplishing much desired ends, comments the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle. We greatly wish to popularize our Nation, its motives, ways and wares, in South America, and our political and business seers give much thought to ways and means for Americanizing the thought and feeling of our southern neighbors.

From Rio Janeiro comes news that a new sympathy for American ideals and tastes has been excited in that city by the installation there by an enterprising druggist from Boston of an up-to-date soda fountain of the latest American pattern. Not content with his success with the fountain, this druggist is introducing the cafeteria idea and his most advertised specialty is "Waffles a la Boston," presumably he includes Vermont maple sirup. "Waffle con maple" is what to ask for in Rio Janeiro, vermicular, and so many are now asking for it that four branch stores have been established. Here is a happy way to convince the people of Brazil that we are of sweet disposition, cool in temper, given to seemly relaxation, and expert in invention of artistic prandial products. If Brazilians and other South Americans grow to connecting sundaes and waffles with sirup with thought of this Nation, a better disposition toward us will be engendered. It proves the adaptability of the Bostonese that this pioneer in a far land kept off beans, which the Southerners like in hot sauces, and chose things cool and sweet to popularize under the name of his native land.

"IT SEEMS ungracious to close a five months' residence at The SMELTON without expressing to you my appreciation of the very remarkable and beautiful thing you have done in creating such a center."
"The great beauty of the hotel, the reserve and cultured taste in its furnishings and decoration, the refinement of atmosphere, the pleasantness of the character of the guests, and the tone of the management, are not only rare for any place, but especially noteworthy in the heart of New York, which is so often blighted with different standards."

DEDICATION EXERCISES OF CHURCH CONCLUDED

Grace Lutheran Congregation
Hears First Sermon by Pastor in Its New Home.

SERVICES ON THURSDAY

Two special services yesterday concluded dedication exercises of Grace Lutheran Church at Sixteenth and Varum streets northwest. The Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor, regularly occupied the pulpit of the new edifice for the first time at the 8 o'clock service last night. The Rev. Dr. Walter E. Schuetz, of Berkeley, Pa., preached the 11 o'clock morning sermon.

Grace Lutheran Church was formerly dedicated on March 17 at 3 o'clock with the pastor officiating at services attended by the congregation and a distinguished group of visitors.

Dr. Schuetz will conduct a special Lenten service at 9 o'clock Thursday night. The first class to be confirmed in the new edifice will be received Palm Sunday. The first communion will be observed Maundy Thursday.

The Grace Lutheran Church, during its 51 years of existence, has had three pastors. Dr. Lenski has been pastor of the church eight years. For many years worship has been conducted in the church at Thirteenth and Corcoran streets northwest, but this edifice was abandoned about three years ago. Since that time and up to the opening of the new edifice last Sunday, the services have been held in Joppa Lodge Hall at Ninth and Upshur streets northwest.

Missionary Council
Called Aid to Union

Jerusalem, March 25 (A.P.).—Opening today's session of the International Missionary Council, Bishop Salisbury emphasized that the present gathering was the most powerful stimulus for world church union ever assembled and predicted that much would be accomplished toward solving racial and industrial problems. The task of the missionary today, he asserted, is not one of ruling but of serving.

The session was attended by Dr. John R. Mott, head of the Young Men's Christian Association of the world; the British high commissioner, Lord Plumer, and other religious leaders of note from various parts of the world, including China, Korea, Japan, Philippines, India, Africa and Latin America.

Prof. William Starr Myers, of Princeton University, will give a political lecture Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock at Central Community Center. "Current History" will be the subject of his address, which will be delivered under the auspices of the Community Institute.

Plane Found in Peru
Now Thought Cossio's

Lima, Peru, March 25 (A.P.).—The wreckage of an airplane found on a Peruvian mountain, which was first thought as possibly belonging to the missing American aviator, Paul Redfern, now is believed by newspapers here to have been the machine in which the Peruvian aviator, Cossio, was forced down and killed some time ago while attempting a non-stop flight from Lima to Cuzco.

Let the Kids Play Outdoors But—

Keep them out of the Street

WITH the arrival of warmer weather the youngsters naturally want to get outdoors and play. Let them go. It is good for them to get out in the fresh air these bright Spring days, but--don't let them do their playing in the street. They are too young and carefree to realize the danger of it. To keep your children safe, keep them away from traffic.

Washington is blessed to a far greater degree than most cities in that we have practically no highly congested districts, while the city abounds with parks, playgrounds and open spaces where the children can play in perfect safety.

In spite of this fact, however, there are far too many street accidents resulting in the death or injury of children. Parents can do a great deal to improve this condition and prevent such accidents by teaching and drilling their offspring in habits of safety.

If your youngsters play on the sidewalk, don't allow them to play ball or other games which may send them racing into the street suddenly. Many a child has been severely injured or killed from darting into the street after a bounding ball.

Children should not be deprived of their play--it is their natural instinct and their recognized birthright. They should, however, be forbidden from using the streets as playgrounds. Streets were never intended for such a purpose---they were built primarily as thoroughfares for traffic.

Keep your children out of the street if you would keep them out of the hospital. Impress it thoroughly upon them that when they play in the street they are playing with death. Let them play, but let them play safe, first, last and all the time.

Through this Safety Campaign the Washington Business Concerns whose names appear below are cooperating for your welfare. Lend them your full support.

RUSSELL, MAKING GOOD AS JOCKEY

Youth Product Of Hunting Section

44 Winning Mounts During 1927 on the Major Tracks.

May Ride for Audley Farms in Kentucky Derby Classic.

By CHARLES A. WATSON.

THE State of Virginia, so rich in the history of the American turf, has added the name of another of her native sons, Jockey Robert Russell, to the long list of notables who have brought undying fame to the Piedmont Valley for their superior horsemanship and excellence in the breeding of racing thoroughbreds, which have won renown on the race courses of the United States and Mexico.

Russell is considered by many prominent horsemen as the leading light-weight jockey of the middle West. During the winter race meet at Tijuana, Mexico, he rode 23 winners, 17 seconds and 14 show horses under the wire since the first of this year. In 1927 he piloted 44 winners, 35 seconds and 37 thirds during the racing season at the various major tracks, a record to be justly proud of.

The Old Dominion jockey is a product of the country about Middleburg, Va., located in the heart of the greatest fox-hunting section in all the world. When a small boy, "Bob," as he is familiarly known to every one, used to stroll down to the banks of old "Goose Creek" near his home, let his bare feet dangle in the waters and watch the ducks and geese ride to the hounds over the broken fields of "Old Virginia."

The yelping of the dogs and the clatter of the horses' hoofs was music to the ears of Russell and at the age of 16 he also took up the chase, riding with the best of them, behind the packs of the Piedmont and Middleburg Hunt Clubs.

The call of the horse was too much for "Bob" and in a short time he made his way over to Berryville, Va., and applied for work at the now famous Audley Farms, owned by B. B. Jones, the Virginia sportsman. Jack Spence, the well known Kentucky horseman and trainer of the Audley string, took a great fancy to the little rider and gave him his first work about the farm exercising and galloping horses under the once famous rider, Harry Stutts, who is now on the ground.

Russell took to the saddle like a duck takes to water and Spence began to cast a mold which was to figure conspicuously in the future life of this boy, who is now one of the first-string jockeys of the Audley Farms Stable.

"Bob" has a perfect seat in the saddle, a good pair of hands and can rate a horse as good as many veterans of the turf. His stretch riding ability is well known to racegoers and has put him among the winners under the wire with a brilliant drive, right at the finish.

Under the wing of Spence, Russell, who is just 17 years of age and weighs only 94 pounds, has developed very fast and has all the earmarks of a truly great jockey. Spence says "Bob" will take his ranking with the best jockeys of other days, such as A. Aubuchon, the first contract rider for the stable, Eddie Martin, "Brownie" Cole, Claude Hunt, Willie Hunt, Jimmy Gruber, Carl Studor, "Mickey" Scoble, Harry Lunsford, Frank Wilson, Guy Mangum, Tommy Murray, Grover Noel and Harry Stutts, who bore the colors of the Virginia racing establishment to many victories.

Russell rode his first winner on April Fool's Day two seasons ago and has piloted his share of winners before the judges ever since this first race. He accepted the mount on Mike Hall, in the Lexington Handicap, opening day two seasons ago, but the gelding, running in back of Tenness, fell on the turn rounding into the stretch, throwing the rider in the path of oncoming horses.

The boy was cut on the head and was lucky to escape serious injury, but, haunted by the mishap, the game little fellow came back two days later and rode Sea Lion in a smashing race. "Bob" has also ridden such good ones as Roiled Stocking, Mistle and Easter Stocking, winner of the Latonia Golden Rod Handicap.

With the Tia Juana season about, Russell was called to Louisville, Ky., by his contract employer, Jack Spence, to prepare for the Kentucky Derby and other big races. Riding of the horses quartered there of the Audley Farms during the coming meeting.

Robert Russell has all the instincts of a Virginia, quiet, unassuming and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He is well liked by horsemen and racegoers alike, and jockeys to the main pronounce him "B-karat," as he has all the qualities which go to make racing stars and idols of the American turf.

Tech Relay Team To Run at Penn Meet

Tech High School plans to send its relay team to the Penn games at Philadelphia April 27 and 28. The team will undoubtedly be composed of the same men who ran indoors, although each man will be forced to defend his position. This team had for its members Nebel, Edelblut, Edwards and Bailey.

Tech will be out in force this week on the Eastern High School track. Coach Harrell had a few men out last week, but the entire squad will report now. During the Easter holidays, from April 6 to April 16, Tech will work out at Central Stadium.

The first meet for the team will come on April 15 against Episcopal, the Maryland School will follow on May 5, a meet with Maryland Freshmen will be held on May 12, the "C" Cup games on May 19 and the Interhigh meet on May 26.

Amateur Oar Regatta At Philly August 3-4

Philadelphia, March 25 (A.P.).—The annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Rowers will be held on the Schuylkill River in this city August 3 and 4. Samuel H. Ruff, of the "Schuylkill navy," announced tonight.

The nationals had been awarded to Worcester, Mass., which city, Mr. Ruff said, had declined the regatta after it had failed to obtain the Olympic trials, which Worcester had planned to hold both meets at the same time. The Olympic rowing committee awarded the trials to Philadelphia, and then Worcester turned down the nationals in favor of this city. The Olympic trials will be held on the Schuylkill on July 6 and 7.

BOBBY, WHO'S MAKING GOOD AS JOCKEY

Youth Product Of Hunting Section

44 Winning Mounts During 1927 on the Major Tracks.

May Ride for Audley Farms in Kentucky Derby Classic.

By CHARLES A. WATSON.

THE State of Virginia, so rich in the history of the American turf, has added the name of another of her native sons, Jockey Robert Russell, to the long list of notables who have brought undying fame to the Piedmont Valley for their superior horsemanship and excellence in the breeding of racing thoroughbreds, which have won renown on the race courses of the United States and Mexico.

Russell is considered by many prominent horsemen as the leading light-weight jockey of the middle West. During the winter race meet at Tia Juana, Mexico, he rode 23 winners, 12 seconds and 14 show horses under the wire since the first of January. In 1927 he piloted 44 winners, 55 seconds and 57 thirds during the racing season at the various major tracks, a record to be justly proud of.

The Old Dominion jockey is a product of the country about Middleburg, Va., located in the heart of the greatest fox-hunting section in all the world. When a small boy, "Bobby," as he is familiarly known to every one, used to stroll down to the banks of old "Goose Creek" near his home, let his bare feet dangle in the waters and watch the huntman ride to the hounds over the broken fields of "Ole Virginia."

The jelping of the dogs and the clatter of the horses' hoofs was music to the ears of Russell and at the age of 10 he also took up the chase, riding with the best of them, behind the packs of the Piedmont and Middleburg Hunt Clubs.

Call of the horse was too much for "Bobby" and in a short time he made his way over to Berryville, Va., and applied for work at the now famous Audley Farms, owned by B. B. Jones, the Virginia sportsman. Kay Spence, the well-known jockey, trainer, breeder and trainer of the Audley string, took a great fancy to the little rider and gave him his first work about the farm exercising and racing horses.

Russell took to the saddle like a duck to water and was soon able to cast a mold which was to figure conspicuously in the future life of this boy, who is now one of the first-string jockeys of the Audley Farms Stable.

"Bobby" has a perfect seat in the saddle, a good pair of hands and can rate a horse as good as many veterans of the turf. His stretch riding ability is well known to racegoers and he has put many winners under the wire with his brilliant drive, right at the finish.

Under the wing of Spence, Russell, who is just 17 years of age and weighs only 94 pounds, has developed very fast and has all the earmarks of a truly great jockey. Spence says "Bobby" will take his ranking with the best jockeys of other days, such as A. Aubuchon, the first contract rider for the stable, Eddie Martin, "Brownie" Cole, Claude Hunt, Willie Hunt, Jimmy Gruber, Carl Studer, "Mickey" Scobie, Harry Lunford, Frank Wilcox, Guy Mangan, Tommy Murray, Grover Noel and Harry Stuart, who bore the colors of the Virginia racing establishment to many victories.

Russell rode his first winner on April Fool's day two seasons ago and has piloted his share of winners before the judges ever since this first race. He accepted the mount on Mike Hall, in the (Washington Handicap, opening day two seasons ago, but the gelding, running in back of Tommy Temple, turned round in the path of oncoming horses.

The boy was cut on the head and was lucky to escape serious injury, but, undaunted by the mishap, the game little fellow came back two days later and rode Sea Lion in a smashing race. "Bobby" has also ridden such good ones as Solid Rocking, Mistletoe and Easter Stocking, winner of the Landon Golden Rod Handicap.

With the Tia Juana season about over, Russell was called to Louisville, Ky., by his contract employer, Kay Spence, to prepare for the Kentucky Derby and do the major riding of the horses quartered there at the Audley Farms during the coming meeting.

Robert Russell has all the instincts of a Virginian, quiet, unassuming and is a gentleman in every sense of the word. He is well liked by horsemen and racegoers alike, and jockeys to the man pronounce him 18-karat, as he has all the qualities which go to make racing stars and idols of the American turf.

Tech Relay Team To Run at Penn Meet

Tech High School plans to send its relay team to the Penn games at Philadelphia April 27 and 28. The team will undoubtedly be composed of the same men who ran indoors, although each man will be forced to defend his position. This team had for its members Nebel, Edelblut, Edwards and Bailey.

Tech will be out in force this week on the Eastern High School track. Coach Hardell had a few men out last week, but the entire squad will report now. During the Easter holidays, from April 6 to April 14, Tech will work out at Central Stadium.

The first meet for the team will come on April 19 against Episcopal, the Maryland Scholastics will follow on May 5, a meet with Maryland Freshmen will be held on May 12, the "C" Club games will be on May 19 and the Interhigh meet on May 25.

Among the prominent members of the Tech team are Pountian, Florence and Postawattaw in the dashes; Edwards, Edelblut and Shriver, in the mile; Mohrhead, in the mile; Bailey, in the low hurdles; Rosenbhal, for the pole vault, and Cotton and Wall, in the shot.

CLEVER RIDER LACK OF JOB MADE RISKY FIGHTER

Baking Business Slow, He Swapped Punches With Friend.

NEW YORK, March 25 (A.P.).—Johnny Risko, like Jack Dempsey, became a heavyweight pugilist because he was out of a job. The Cleveland heavyweight, widely known as "the rubber man" and "the boxer boy," actually was a boxer boy. There is no disposition to assert he actually is made of rubber, although his opponents often think he is.

It was five years ago Young Risko, leaving the art of fashioning pie and cakes, got the baking business mixed up with the flour and lost his job. In the jobless period he shot some pool, lost a bit—and finally swapped a friendly punch or two with a neighbor named Frankie Stelmach.

To Stelmach, a Cleveland light-weight of purely local repute, Danny Risko, Risko's manager, gives all the credit for the fighter's "discovery."

"Say Danny," said Stelmach one day, walking into Risko's gymnasium. "I've got a young fellow lives near me who ought to make a fighter. You hit him and he doesn't mind it. Seems to like it."

"Nothing doing," Dunn replied, glancing around the busy gym where the punching bags were pounding like kettle drums. "I've got too many around here now."

Stelmach persisted and finally won Risko still was without anything to do and wasn't averse to being a fighter.

He walked in with a big grin on his face," recounts Dunn. "My big fellow hit him with all they had and they couldn't hurt him."

Dunn was to be quite a bantam-weight himself. "Sure," grinned Risko. The test is the history of one knockout and another in the amateur ring and quite a remarkable showing in the ring against all the top line heavyweights except Dempsey.

ST. LOUIS JOB CAPITAL CITY TASK FOR HOWLEY BOOTERS BEATEN

Starts With Nothing, Washington League's Must Prevent Loss—Pegler.

"What sort of infield are you going to have?" I asked Mr. Howley.

"Well," he said, "I am going to have Low Blue on first and Frank O'Rourke on third."

"But, Mr. Howley," your correspondent protested, being very alert, "there should be a second baseman and a shortstop."

"That is true," Mr. Howley said, "but you did not ask me about what I should have."

"But aren't you going to have four uniforms in your infield?"

"Oh, to be sure," said Mr. Howley. "I have a boy named Otis Brannon and another one named Ralph Kress, both from Tulsa, Okla. At the very beginning I said to Brannon, 'You are the second baseman of this club,' and to Kress, 'You are the shortstop,' and they set very much like a second baseman and a shortstop, but I can't tell whether they are until the season starts. Then if they aren't, I have only Otis Brannon, who has been sick, and Walter Gerber, who is almost as old as I am."

All in all, Mr. Howley's problem is an embarrassing one for a manager who has to lose ball games as he does.

"It hurts me to lose ball games," he said. "So you can imagine how I suffered last year, particularly in our games with the New York Yankees. It seemed that every time we would get a runner on base, I would look up and see that Frank Merriwell Moore coming in to pitch and he would stop us dead. Babe Ruth, that handsome fellow, was not kind to us, either."

"In the last ball game of the year last year, Mr. Huggins started Herb Pennock against us trying to win 22 games and sweep the whole season's series from us, which would have a world record. But the Yankees went all to pieces at the end of the season. We beat them one game in succession."

"I shall never forget an amusing conversation that I had with Mr. Donie Bush, the manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, after the Yankees had defeated them in four consecutive baseball matches for the world championship last year. Mr. Bush was feeling quite knocked about, you know, and he was dabbling at his right eye with a handkerchief. Not really crying, you know, because he has a sort of tear duct which is always leaking, but it looked as though he was crying.

"So, I said, 'Here, here, old chap, have some tea and buck up.'"

"Mr. Bush said, 'I feel quite bad. I didn't think they could defeat us in four straight matches.'"

"Well, ha, ha," Mr. Bush, I replied, "I shouldn't let that worry me. Think of my chaps. They defeated us in 21 straight matches before we caught them in that sensational slump and ran up a streak of one victory."

Georgetown Stars Enter Devitt Nat. Meet

A few members of the Georgetown Track Team will compete in the Devitt School national interscholastic track and field meet to be held on the Georgetown Field April 21 as a warm-up for the Penn games in Philadelphia April 27 and 28.

One of the special events will bring together Frank Hussey, present holder of the 100-yard indoor title; Karl Wilder, muth, national champion, and Henry Cumming, University of Virginia Southern Conference sprint champion. Hussey ran at Central Stadium against Charlie Pugh, Walter Palmer and Richard Zeigler in 1928.

The Georgetown track record for 100 yards is 16 seconds. This mark has stood since May 22, when Bob Le Gendre, racing against the Penn State stars, lowered it from 17 to 16 seconds. Le Gendre will be an official at the Devitt meet and watch from the side lines the three men who will try to shatter his mark.

The executive committee will hold an Olympic 400-meter event, open only to Devitt alumni. Those desiring to enter are requested to send their names to Devitt School.

How Men Learned to Write

VI. PAPER, PEN AND INK

LET us think for a moment of how important paper is. We write letters upon it and it is used for the modern kind of books. Newspapers and magazines use millions of pounds of paper every year.

An Egyptian Scribe at Work.

What was the first paper men used? You have perhaps heard that "paper came from China," and that appears to be true, as far as rag paper is concerned. But Egypt may be given the credit for a kind of paper even ahead of China.

Among the remains of ancient Egypt is a roll of papyrus which dates back 3,400 years. When unwound, we find that it has a length of 16 feet and that it contains hundreds of Egyptian words. The man who did the writing was "Hu the Good," a scribe employed by Seti the First, ruler of the kingdom. The papyrus upon which Hu wrote was made from reeds which grew in and beside the Nile River. The stems of the reeds were split into strips, which were laid side by side, with others crosswise. Then the strips were soaked in water and hammered into one piece. When dried, the papyrus formed a sort of paper of a pale yellow color. Our modern word "paper" comes from "papyrus."

The pen which the scribe used was a reed cut at one end into a sharp point. The sharp end was the "pen point."

The dark ink of the Egyptians was made by mixing water with soot taken from pots blackened while hanging over fires. Gummy juices from certain plants were added to thicken the ink and make it hold to the paper.

The writing on the roll of papyrus which I mentioned was about life of spirits or "souls" after death. It describes the terrors which the Egyptians thought they must pass through in the underworld before they could reach the pleasant "Fields of Anu."

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREAD WINNER

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

In our series of Bridge articles for the novice, we continue today the consideration of No Trump bids.

There is one element of strength in a hand which is not included in the 4, King 3, Queen 2, Jack 1, count given last week, but which a beginner should consider (the expert is sure to do so), and that is whether it contains one or more Tens. Tens and even Nines are elements of strength for a No Trump and, while they are not of sufficient importance to justify giving them any point (a Jack is reckoned as only one), nevertheless they are most helpful and their presence or absence frequently governs an expert in deciding whether or not to bid a No Trump with a borderline hand. For example, the following hand:

♠ A-J-X
♥ K-X-X
♦ Q-J-X
♣ X-X-X-X

counts 11; experts call it a borderline hand. Some would bid it and some would not, but no one would advise a beginner to risk so weak a bid. Put even one Ten in the hand in any suit and the majority of experts would bid a No Trump with it, but that would not make it quite strong enough for a novice. A few more examples will help in the clarification of the No Trump bidding conventions.

Take this one for example:

♠ A-X-X
♥ A-X-X
♦ A-X-X
♣ X-X-X-X

On the basis of Ace-4, King-3, Queen-2, Jack-1, the count of the hand would be 15. The hand has three suits sure stopped, no sound suit, and no short, unprotected suit; it has, in fact, the ideal 3-3-3-4 No Trump distribution. Most experts would unhesitatingly bid No Trump with this holding; whether a nonexpert should do so would depend upon whether he was playing with inferior or equal, or at a table where he was distinctly outclassed. With his inferiors he should do so; with his equals it would be questionable; with his superiors unwise.

When a hand contains two Aces and one King, without a Jack or even a Ten to support it, I do not think that it should be bid by any one; it counts 11 but lacks possible tricks. (This subject will be continued next Monday.)

In the Shoe Shining Parlor.
"I HAVE kept the $52,000."
"I wouldn't have done that, but I'd taken the bag home and had the fun of counting $2,000 81 bills."

"I would've hung onto it until I saw that a reward was being offered."
These pearls of wisdom were prompted by the reports that a poor, ignorant and out-of-work man found a bag containing $52,000 81 bills which had fallen out of an armored car. The patrons of a bootblack stand in which I chance to be expressed themselves first, and then the bootblack assented and said: "By golly, it was a big bunch of money—more than I get by working 1,000,000 years. But it did not belong to the poor fellow, and the fellow who lost it would have lost his job if it hadn't been found, and perhaps they had families and much children, and besides a feller sleeps better if he's honest."

I was just starting for a national conference on character education, where hundreds were to be put in three days in analyzing plans and methods for inculcating character education in the schools. I was going back to my workshop. The bootblack had exhausted the subject in a paragraph. What more could I learn?

But I went and I learned a lot that wasn't true, a lot I'd take with more than a pinch of salt, and some things that may be true, yet they are—all kinds. No child is honest about every thing. Private school children are more honest than public school children. A knowledge of honesty was the well to do do not cheat as much as children of poor parents.

I'll take exception to the last, at least—statistics or no statistics. There are three kinds of lies, you know—white, black and statistics. One investigator of character education has had the audacity to say that children who "have taken certain pledges incident to certain clubs dedicated to boy and girl life were not as truthful as those who do not belong to any organization. Why doesn't some fool professor go a bit further and say that children who get no physical exercise are stronger than those who take systematic training?"

I'll agree that no child is honest in everything and that one bad act does not mean that a boy is all bad. Further, I'll agree that no child is honest in everything and that one bad act does not mean that a boy is all bad. The Homemaker

By NANCY CAREY

I THINK that this early part of the week we must jump into the details of request recipes—also, I've a recipe for hot-cross buns for you, upon which you may like to operate at this fitting season of the year. Of course, I enjoy your recipes of course, I do not make all of them. New ones especially appeal to me. Am I including a recipe for spiced pigs' feet, which a reader requested a short time ago.

Spiced Pigs' Feet.
Clean feet and scrape well. Soak in cold water two hours, wash and scrub well. Put in stewpan and cover with cold water. Place over moderate fire and simmer until tender. Pick meat from bones and season with salt and pepper. Then boil together, for one-half minute, one-half pint vinegar, three blades of mace, twelve whole cloves, and two bay leaves. Pour over meat, while hot. Pour all in earthen bowl and put it in a cold place. Ready for use next day.

Fried Apple Pie.
(From E. S. B.)
Cut apples into quarters and each quarter into three slices. Fry the apples in deep fat as you would potato chips. Arrange in layers in a baked pie shell, each layer of apples sprinkled with powdered sugar and a bit of cinnamon or nutmeg. Cover with an unbaked crust and return to a hot oven (350 degrees) baking until the top crust is done. Serve with a spoonful of whipped cream on each slice. About twice as many apples are required as if the pie were made in the ordinary way.

And here—since we are already guilty of skipping our menu to go along with these nice letters—here, is the hot-cross bun formula.

Hot-Cross Buns.
Dissolve a half yeast cake in two tablespoonsful of lukewarm water and add it to a half pint of milk that has been scalded and cooled until lukewarm. Sift together three cupsful of flour and a quarter teaspoonful of salt, stir into the milk until dough is smooth, then allow to rise about two hours. Beat together three tablespoonsful of butter and four tablespoonsful of sugar until creamy. Add an egg, beaten, a half cupful of currants and a pinch each of cloves and cinnamon. Mix this with the dough, knead it and allow to rise a second time until double its bulk. Form into round-shaped buns, place in pan or in a baking sheet, brush the tops with beaten egg, and with a sharp knife make a cross on each and bake in a hot oven about twenty minutes.

Pictures Are Taken At 4,000 A Second
Cambridge, Mass., March 25 (A.P.).—Now they're studying the action of oil in a Diesel engine by taking pictures at the rate of 4,000 a second. The process was described by W. F. Joachims, research engineer, at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Man Spends Only $2 Daily on Cigarettes
White Plains, N. Y., March 25 (A.P.).—Ambrose Reynolds, Yonkers lumber dealer, spends only $2 a day on cigarettes. He so avers in answering a separation suit in which the Mrs. Joachims claims that he is a tobacco addict, smoking 15 packages of cigarettes a day.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

Is He Worthy?

DEAR Miss McDonald: Both my parents are dead and I am boarding with relatives. A young man friend tells me he loves me, but I am not permitted to go out with him. I am a stenographer and working. Do you think I should listen to my relatives or should I do as I please?

The fellow goes with another girl at present and thinks her very nice, but still he tells me he loves me and does all he can to help me when he gets the chance to do so. Do you think he really loves me? Before my mother died he was allowed to come to see me, but since then he had to quit.

I have known this fellow for the past five or six years. I have gone with different men since, but I tire of them and always think of him. These other fellows bore me. It seems as if he were watching me so much, for I never do anything that I think he wouldn't want me to do. Do you think I really love him or do you think I will forget him in time?

You do not tell me why your relatives object to him. Since they have permitted you to go with other chaps they must have some definite reason for withholding their consent to your friendship with him. What about the other girl—to whom no doubt he makes love with equal ardor? Does she also dream dreams of him? Perhaps this is why your relatives disapprove of him.

How To Keep Well

A GOOD SCHOOL RECORD FOR HEALTH'S SAKE.

DR. A. M. CARR has a method by which the school teacher can keep a record of the health of pupils, and it has some advantage. A record sheet has been printed on it a diagram of the schoolroom. The positions of the desks are indicated. There are 40 desks, eight in each of five rows. Each desk is given a number and the students are designated thereby. When a student is absent a cross is made on the desk as shown on the diagram. If he is sick the letter "S" is used, and if he has a form of contagion the first letter of the disease is also written in his file.

The theory on which this plan is based is that some colds and other contagions are spread by contact in the schoolroom, and while the pupils are at their desks.

Several years ago an epidemiologist of the Minnesota Department of Health used the method for visualizing the spread of an epidemic in a school in his file.

In the northwest corner of the chart is a table for recording the kind of lunches the children had. The lunches are scored as good, fair or poor, meaning nutritious, fairly nutritious, and not suited to a growing child. Another entry showed how many had milk with their lunch and how many did not.

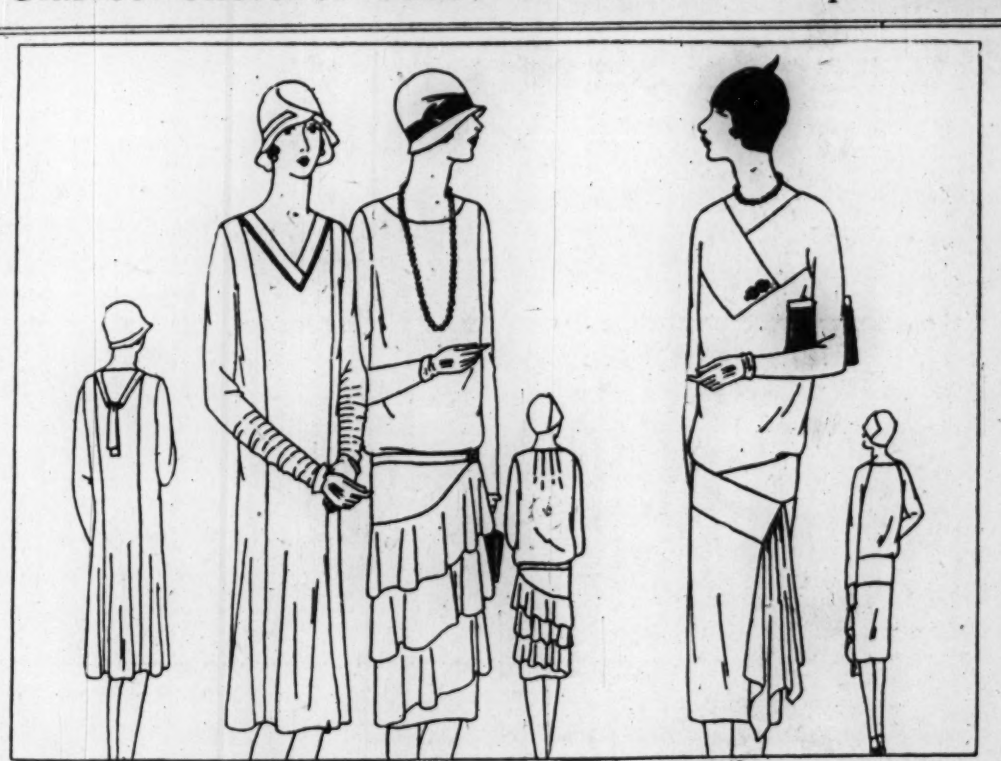

In the southwest corner is a table on which the children were divided into the number malnourished, borderline, normal, and overweight. On the right hand side of the chart was space for a record of weather and air conditions in the schoolroom. The weather record shows clear, cloudy, rain and snow and the record of the temperature. Another bit of space is arranged to show how many of the children were rubbers. Some space on that right side may be used for recording ventilation, heating, humidity, and comfort in the schoolroom.

12 HOURS SLEEP TOO MUCH.
Worried writes: What is the difference, in regard to health, in going to bed at 8 p. m. and rising at 8 a. m. and in going to bed at 10:30 p. m. and rising at 10:30 a. m.?

There is no difference. They are equally bad. Twelve hours a day in bed is too much of a good thing.

Claribel Sketches Three Versions of Crepe Dress

DEAR Eve: This week I have sketched for you three versions of the silk crepe dress. They would, of course, be just as smart in a printed silk or in satin, or faille, but I have chosen plain silk crepe because it is so practical for semiformal street or afternoon wear.

The dress on the extreme left is very simple, with a semitrimmed neckline and a circular skirt that falls in soft graceful folds. The neckline is V-shaped and is edged with a line of fagoting. The sleeves are long and are tucked on the inside so that they have a "pushed-up" appearance. The frock is black, and a black belt accompanies it. The hat is one that you probably know, since it is a copy of a Reubens model. It has a folded brim that forms the up-over-one-eye-brow effect that is so smart this season.

The dress in the center is of light navy-blue crepe. It has a high collar and a full skirt. The neckline is V-shaped and is edged with a line of fagoting. The sleeves are long and are tucked on the inside so that they have a "pushed-up" appearance. The frock is black, and a black belt accompanies it. One Rival Less for the Gofer.

Mitzi's evening gown is more and it achieves a one-sided effect by folds pulled up to the top of one hip and flared out there in a stiff ripple of fabric. The décolletage is square and is odd by having one shoulder strap so much wider than the other. Mitzi, it seems to say to it, is deserting the famous author for the Gofer—and why?

"I do not see," says Mitzi to the Gofer, as they start for home. "Why people rave so about this books. Of course, the plots are good and I suppose the atmosphere is realistic, but all so drowsy!" We put it to you, isn't that a proper sentiment from a young woman whose evening cape matches her gown?

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE MINNIFORD

THE NONUNDERSTANDING OLD.

AN ELDERLY lady, to judge from her handwriting, signing herself (I think) A. B., writes to take exception to my article on "Restaurants and Evening Clothes." She thinks it ridiculous for me to answer letters appearing in the column as if their writers knew anything about the social world. "I should judge from L. L.'s letter," she says, "that she was from the country and going to the city on a visit. She probably has never dressed for dinner in her life, but thinks she ought to when staying at a large hotel. You advise her always to dress for dinner. Can't you picture a woman standing over a cook stove in a nifty little evening dress frying potatoes for a large family?"

She then points out differences in social classes which she thinks I ought to recognize and signs her initials. I remember, but vaguely, that particular letter she mentions. My impression is, however, that it was from some one who had lived quietly, out of the world, and wanted his customs explained to her. In explaining I tried to suggest that the habit of dressing for dinner was a good one, both because it was a preparation for appetite and for the evening's amusement. But even if I were picturing a woman at home preparing dinner—as many apartment dwellers do today—for several guests, I should still suggest that the habit of dressing for dinner was a good one, both because it was a preparation for appetite and for the evening's amusement.

So think things over dear. After all mother did not disapprove of him—so he must have been worthy of you then. Has he changed? Think well before you break with your own because of any man. If you finally are certain that the man is all a man should be and if his attitude toward you convinces you that he does care for you, then tell your relatives of your decision and do so in a way that will not hurt, for as you travel on along the winding road of life, regrets come sharp and deep for little hurts offered to those who loved us. So tread lightly, dear, and cause no needless pain.
